Prompt Russian Okay Seen for Nuclear Pact

U.S. Envoy Returns to Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador William Foster disclosed today that he is rushing back to Geneva in expectation of a prompt agreement with Russia on a draft of a nuclear nonproliferation treaty and its presentation promptly to an 18-nation disarmament conference.

Foster conferred with President Johnson about the matter this morning.

He had come in from Geneva Wednesday to testify in Congress on appropriations and expected to stay for some time.

Nasser Aide Says Renewal Of War Virtually Inevitable

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Porters Jordan plans to negotiate soon with Israel. Hejazi, known to be close to Hussein, said plans for such talks should be made public "within 10 days."

Old Friends

Tito planned to spend three days conferring with Nasser, an old personal friend and associate in the nonaligned movement. Informants said Tito has evolved a plan calling for Israeli withdrawal from territory wrested from the Arabs in the June war in return for guarantees by the big powers of the U.N. Security Council of Israel's prewar borders. But the Israelis have insisted they will not give up the Old City of Jerusalem and have given no indication they would consider any international guarantees sufficient to protect them.

Bridge Destroyed

Warplanes Blast Key Link in Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck within 1.7 miles of the center of Hanoi today, and pilots reported knocking out a key bridge linking the North Vietnamese capital with rail lines running into Red China.

The U.S. Command said four direct bomb hits dropped the center span over the east channel of the mile-long Doumer highway and railroad bridge.

The long bridge over the Red River is a vital link in the Hanoi-Haiphong transportation system that joins up with the railroad facilities leading to China, spokesmen said.

The raids were carried out by U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief and F4C Phantom pilots.

The command said complete bomb damage assessment was not yet available. There were no other details.

Thieu Begins New Support In Pacification

SAIGON (AP) — Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu announced a shakeup today in South Vietnamese military support of the pacification program.

Thieu said 4 of the regular army's 10 divisions will be broken down into smaller components and placed in direct support of the pacification program under the command of the 44 province chiefs instead of the division commanders.

In addition, he said, militiamen of the Popular Force and Regional Force will be placed more firmly under the control of the regular army for training, indoctrination and education in their task. The militiamen will remain the main defense against Viet Cong attacks on the pacification teams in the villages and hamlets.

The changes amount to a major effort to insure the success of the program which U.S. military advisers have been urging for some time.

Hit Power Plant

U.S. Navy planes struck a Hanoi power plant 1.1 miles from the center of the capital May 19. Today's attacks represented a renewed intensification of the air war over North Vietnam.

A U.S. Air Force Phantom jet returning from a combat mission was destroyed in a crash landing at the Da Nang Air Base. It surged out of control and smashed into two houses at the end of the runway, killing the navigator and two elderly Vietnamese civilians. The pilot survived. It was not announced whether the plane had taken part in the Hanoi raid.

On Thursday, U.S. fighter-bombers streaked through heavy Communist anti-aircraft fire and damaged heavily two big North Vietnamese railroad yards north of Hanoi and Haiphong. Ground action was generally light, despite 34 continuing allied operations.

Bombs on Target

Navy pilots reported all bombs on target at a truck park 30 miles south of Hanoi, but smoke and dust prevented a damage assessment.

It was during this raid that pilots of two F4 Phantoms from the carrier Constellation spotted three North Vietnamese MIG21s and shot down two of them.

But word came through, he told reporters, that the Soviet Union now is ready to agree on a draft-treaty — although there will be one major blank in it.

This blank is on the issues of inspection and safeguards.

Consider Terms

The treaty and the discussions surrounding it have been a matter of negotiations for months. Laying a draft before the disarmament commission would give various other nations a chance to consider terms on which the two principal world powers have agreed.

And this would be a step toward eventual presentation of the treaty to the United Nations General Assembly for signature by member countries.

Foster now plans to be back in Geneva by Sunday noon to confer with his opposite number in the Russian delegation, Ambassador Alexei Roschin.

"We are in the process of the final solution of the problem," Foster said.

Foster said that U.S. allies have kept abreast of the developments and discussions "and we had a green light to take this type of agreement" to the disarmament commission.

West Germany has had some reservations on a nonproliferation treaty and some reluctance.

The belligerent notes were sounded as Yugoslav President Tito opened talks in Cairo with Nasser in an effort to sell the Egyptian leader a peace formula for the Middle East.

Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, editor of the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahran, said in a signed editorial: "only a miracle will prevent a return to the battlefield, and I do not think we live in an age of miracles."

Fighting Readiness

Heikal, generally regarded as Nasser's spokesman, said the first task facing Egypt is "restoration of the army to its fighting readiness."

Hussein declared in Amman that Jordan "is determined to die" before it surrenders the Arab sector of Jerusalem to Israel.

"We are determined not to cede any part of our beloved land nor any stone of our sacred Jerusalem," Hussein said in a speech Thursday on the eve of the 15th anniversary of his becoming king.

He said Arabs had been protecting the Holy City for centuries and "we will not hesitate to sacrifice our lives in order to remain its protectors."

The Jerusalem Post reported Wednesday that Jordan's former development minister, Ismail Hejazi, had told one of its re-

Christian leaders in eastern Jordan announced they are sending protests to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant and Pope Paul VI against Israel's annexation of Old Jerusalem and alleged desecration of holy sites.

500 Reported Killed, Injured In South China

Supporters, Foes Of Mao Tse-tung Clash in Canton

HONG KONG, (AP) — Supporters and foes of Mao Tse-tung battled Wednesday night and Thursday in Canton, South China's largest city, and more than 500 persons were killed or seriously wounded, visitors from Red China reported today.

The visitors said shots were heard throughout Kwangtung Province's capital. They said the guns were believed to have been seized from Chinese troops and police who seemed to be neutral during recent clashes.

One visitor, who stayed in Canton for 14 days, said: "The high toll of casualties is a result of gun battles between the two groups. Clashes were frequent in Canton, but this was the first time that guns were used by both sides." Another visitor said Canton was "a city of terror" with most areas under military curfew.

"Ignore Curfew"

"Members of the rival groups apparently ignore the curfew," he said. "Thousands roam the square areas and troops apparently do not know how to handle the situation." The visitors said both factions seemed to be well organized and had their own trucks for transportation.

"Reinforcement was fast from both sides," one source said. "I saw a clash between a small number of Red Guards and workers in front of a restaurant. Within minutes reinforcement from both sides rushed to the scene by trucks and bicycles. "No gun was used in this particular clash but police and troops cordoned the area. They did not interfere with fighting."

Interference With Free Choice

Thieu-Ky Campaign Tactics Rapped by Kennedy, Javits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said today there is "mounting and distressing evidence" South Vietnam's military regime is interfering with free choice in that nation's coming presidential election.

The New York Democrat said such interference would be a betrayal of the cause for which 12,000 Americans have died.

And his New York colleague, Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits, said the South Vietnam elections should "mark the beginning of an end of our commitment there." He said a new, elected government should set to work to take responsibility for its own security, and the United States should look toward disengagement.

Presidential elections are scheduled in Vietnam Sept. 3.

Eleven tickets are entered, including a military pairing composed of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, chief of state, and Nguyen Cao Ky, now premier. Ky is running for vice president.

Kennedy charged that would-be candidates have been barred from the election because their views were deemed unacceptable; that opponents of the Ky regime have been jailed; that the presidential campaigners are being hampered by harassment; that the military government is moving to perpetuate its power whatever the election outcome.

"If free elections are not possible there," Javits said, "we have every right, once the elections take place, to begin to consider phasing out our commitment."

"We would no longer have a common purpose with the government of Vietnam," Kennedy said.

7 Halt Campaigning

Premier Again Denies Charges of Candidates

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky today brushed off charges from South Vietnam's civilian presidential candidates that he has failed to provide them adequate security and transportation for campaigning.

"What do we have to answer? I have said many times we are ready to provide them everything necessary for their campaign," Ky told a reporter.

Seven of the 10 civilian candidates announced Thursday they would not participate in a tour of the provinces arranged by the government until Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu answered a letter they wrote Tuesday demanding assurance of "adequate security and transportation."

Trip Called Off

A 22-stop trip began last Sunday, but was called off in Quang Tri, the first stop, because a reception committee and government cars were not on hand to greet them. The candidates returned to Saigon and charged that Thieu and Ky, the military candidates for president and vice president, were trying to sabotage their campaign.

The civilians have not campaigned since then.

Most of the civilian candidates were reported discussing pulling out of the Sept. 3 election and uniting behind the ticket of former Premier Tran Van Huong.

Informed sources said the mass pullout, if it happened, would be accompanied by a denunciation of Ky and Thieu, charging the government with police harassment of civilian candidates and sabotage of the election process.

Asked about the civilian boycott, Ky said: "It's their right" but he added that he thought their criticisms were unfair.

"All their criticisms are not accurate, not true," he said. "So I will never accept the letter. Pressure for me means nothing."

Ky denied charges that provincial officials are harassing civilian campaigners.

"A couple of months ago I had a meeting with all the chiefs of police from all the provinces," he said. "And I told them not to become Young, 21. of Dayton, intimidate or use their authority to crush the people. Until now, I have heard nothing about this," Young.

Meteor Shower At Best Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The annual Perseid meteor shower—one of nature's yearly and rather spectacular free shows—is programmed to be at its best tonight or Saturday night after warming up in recent nights.

It will be visible nationwide, weather permitting.

Astronomer Grady Hicks of the Naval Research Laboratory told a reporter as many as 50 "shooting stars" an hour should be visible in the northeastern sky, between midnight and 4 a.m. local time.

Some meteors should be visible even earlier, said Hicks who rates the Perseids—named for a hero of Greek mythology—as "one of the most spectacular, and the most reliable, of all meteor showers."

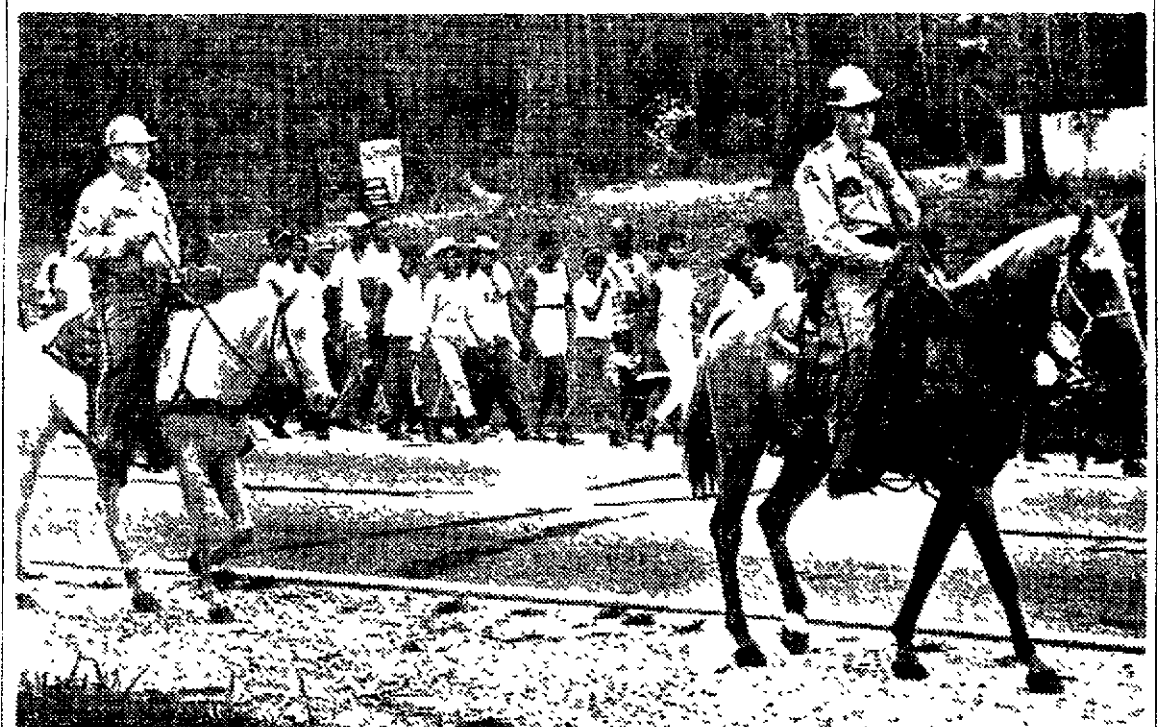

He suggests that you look towards the northeast "and up at an elevation angle of 45 to 60 degrees" for best viewing.

3 Americans Among 11 Killed in Denmark

ODENSE, Denmark (AP) — Three Americans from Ohio and eight Danes died Thursday in Denmark's worst railroad disaster in more than 50 years—the crash of one passenger train into the rear of another that had stopped on a bridge.

The American dead were identified as Joseph Nemesh, 57, of Cleveland, and Alexander Kill, 50, of Dayton.

Howard Young, 21, of Dayton, chairman of a Republican county committee, was also killed.

Three Black Men . . . III

Basketball Star Tries 'to be Two People'

BY KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The best of everything beckons to Blanton Simmons, athlete and student at Marquette University. He is only a junior but already the job offers are coming in.

Recently he was married and soon will have a bachelor's degree in philosophy. He will be in a position to flee the Negro slums. He is a young black man who seemingly has it made.

But for Blanton Simmons, basketball player, life is not that simple. Black awareness has come to him with an almost religious intensity.

"There was a deep-rooted feeling there all the time, but it never actually came out," explained Simmons — until the night he heard Stokely Carmichael speak.

"He impressed me so much," said Simmons. "The feeling he gave black people by just standing up there and saying two words — 'black power' . . .

You could see the sincerity in him in just the smile and the warmth he had for black people. It was just so great. It was something that I had never experienced before.

"You feel good and wholesome and strong just to be black. It made you feel like you could do almost supernatural things. That's how great he is."

For 16 years Simmons' widowed mother has worked, helping put him at the threshold of a career. "I can't remember her ever taking a day off," he said.

He realizes his responsibilities to her, to his bride and to himself. He isn't about to dash their hopes or his own potential. But he doesn't want to turn his back on his own people.

"To me, it is not a bitter feeling. If anybody should feel that they are being accepted and they have an opportunity to break away from all the things we have been subjected to, it would be me," he said.

"I can't worry only about myself. I have to more or less worry about the good of the entire black people because I feel when one black man is in trouble, this is potentially me."

This summer, Simmons, 20, is resolving his dilemma by working in two full-time jobs. The first is with a brewery. The second is with a federal poverty program in the city's inner core.

"It's sort of a cool-it-thing. Don't riot this summer. Hold off. We'll fund you until September and then send you back to school."

The same twin involvement he hopes may be possible after he gets his degree next June.

"In a sense, you have to be two people," Simmons said. "What I have tried to do since I reached a state of awareness is try to communicate and do a good job while in the white society, to not hold any antagonisms toward the whites and not be bitter because of surroundings I'm from and to do as good a job as I can to represent my race well.

"But at the same time, I don't want to lose my identity. I want to be able to come back and talk to black people like I still am a black man, not like I'm up here and trying to talk down to you now."

Black awareness has helped Simmons answer some questions and left him groping for answers to others.

He supports Muhammad Ali (Cassius Clay) for his stand on refusing Army service. "He is considered a fool by nearly every white man I have spoken to," said Simmons, "and this is because Muhammad Ali killed God according to the white man and their God is money."

He is against the war in Vietnam. "How can a black man go over and fight in a war for the white man? Like Stokely said, it's the black man fighting the yellow man for the white man who took the country from the red man. I don't know how a black man can go over there and fight and do this in his correct conscience."

He is in favor of promoting black culture and preserving its values from absorption into white culture.

He wants social change, but how it should be implemented puzzles him. "I often get lost. I know what I want. I know how I want to go about getting it. I know I want to keep this black awareness, this black pride because it's me. But I get lost on how it is going to be ultimately accomplished because we can't straighten out through people's consciousness. I know all the laws in the world can't change anything that people won't buy in their heads."

The white world once held no conflicts for Simmons. One reason was that he seldom came into contact with it. At North High School, there was only one white student when Simmons went there. Besides, Simmons' Turn to Page 3, Col. 8

Hardening of Arteries Difficult to Eliminate

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M. D.
There is the type of person who can walk for no more than a few minutes before his legs begin to pain him. One cause, perhaps the commonest for this is reduced circulation because the arteries to the legs have become narrowed to a considerable degree arteriosclerosis or "hardening of the arteries."

Dr. Molner

Unless the narrowing is primarily at a single point, and surgery can help the situation, the amount of help for such patients is limited. Drugs can encourage the circulation to a modest degree. But there is as yet no medication which can "clean out the arteries," although efforts are being made to find something that will.

Thus it is interesting to note an experiment reported by two doctors in Denmark. They told a group of such patients to walk as vigorously as possible for an hour a day. Not that any of them could continue for anything like an hour. They were instructed to walk as briskly as they could until pain stopped them. Then they rested until able to resume.

This did indeed seem to stimulate the flagging circulation — as it logically should. Circulation of the blood is not entirely a function of the heart's pumping. The movement of muscles surrounding blood vessels also plays a part.

At the end of six months, these patients were able, on the average, to walk nearly three times as far before pain stopped them.

To protect against the possibility that this improvement was "all in the mind," another group of patients received pills, actually not effective, but offered with the idea that they would help them. These patients did not improve.

I would not suggest that people with this sort of problem try this treatment on their own. Some other condition may exist which would make this strenuous effort inadvisable. Therefore ask the doctor first whether he sees any objection to making the effort.

If he consents, try it. It may help.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some time ago a doctor told me I had an enlarged prostate gland. At that time I was having no trouble with it. Now I have a little trouble urinating. Is an operation a serious procedure, or is it something that can be compared to, say, an appendectomy? I've had my appendix removed and it wasn't too bad. I am 49. — W.M.B.

Depending on what surgery is required, a prostate operation can be either less or more involved than removing an appendix. Generally speaking, the sooner the operation is done, the better, as prostate trouble tends to get gradually worse (and occasionally rapidly worse). I suggest reading my booklet, "The Pesky Prostate," which will explain the various types of surgery required, depending on the patient's condition. Send 20 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of the booklet.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have either heard or read that people with leprosy no longer have to be isolated. Everyone says I am wrong. Can this disease be either cured or controlled? — Mrs. C.M.B.

Leprosy (Hansen's disease) can be transmitted from person to person but only by prolonged, close contact, and there is no need for strict quarantine. Some of the colonies for such patients remain, but principally because some who had lived there for years preferred to remain.

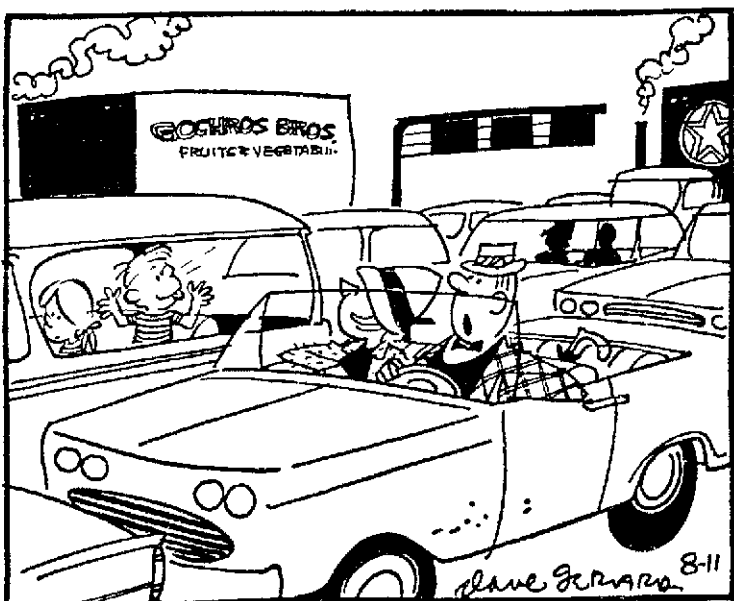

There are several types of the disease and some can be treated with a considerable degree of success.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of the booklet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Sherbet makes a beautiful dessert served alone or with fruits, but it's more than just a dessert delicacy. Combined with fruit juices it makes a superb punch.

Many fine restaurants serve sherbet as an accompaniment for the meat course. This is a pretty trick easily duplicated at home.

Apricot or pineapple flavored sherberts are especially pleasing with pork, ham or poultry. Scoops of lime or orange make colorful additions to a salad plate of cold cuts and cheese.

For a party treat, serve sherbet-melon boats with crisp, salty thin wafers. This is a delightful refreshment for summer guests and the best part of it all is that the boats may be made ahead of time. Scoops of rich apricot sherbet and tangy lemon provide a bright color contrast to the melon tones.

It's important to store sherbet properly and use it before it turns sugary and loses its appetizing lightness.

Store sherbet at 5 degrees below zero if possible. The sugar content of the mixture lowers the freezing point and makes this temperature best for storage.

The best temperature for dipping is 5 degrees above zero.

When using the half-gallon carton, spoon sherbet from center to side of the carton. After part of the sherbet is used, aluminum foil may be placed next to the sherbet surface to prevent dehydration. Use remainder of the sherbet within 4 days.

Wise Mother Doesn't Leave Child Without Protection

BY DR. EVE JONES

DEAR DR. JONES: What do you think of an apparently intelligent mother who leaves her 5-year-old boy alone while she goes shopping? He has been seen in the company of little boys who have started fires. And although I doubt that he would ever resort to this sort of entertainment, it bothers me. MRS. B.V.

This mother's intelligence is only apparent, obviously. A truly wise mother doesn't leave a child unless she makes certain he knows he can turn to some other adult for help if he needs it. And a wise mother doesn't permit her child to play with children who are a danger to himself. Though this boy may not start any fires, he can still be burned. Speak to this mother. If she can't be convinced by reason, tell her you'll call the police the next time she leaves her child alone. This won't make her love you, but it should make her afraid to fail to protect her child.

DEAR DR. JONES: Graduation day at our elementary school means the girls get all dolled up with prom dresses, beauty-shop hair-do's, and heels tinted to match the dresses.

I've gone on record as saying that I think this is ridiculous. Now won't letting my daughter go along with the crowd indicate a surrender of sorts? I don't want to make my daughter a pawn in my contest with the community. But isn't there a matter of integrity involved here, too? I probably won't forbid her to follow the crowd, but I'd feel better if you agreed with me. MRS. M.S.

I agree that it's premature for eighth graders to wear heels. But so long as your daughter has no mistaken ideas that she's grown up because she can put heels on, and if your budget can stand the extra cost of this finery, it's difficult to see how it can cause anyone any trouble.

Save your ammunition for the times the crowd does something that hurts individual growth and development. These are the fights that count.

DEAR DR. JONES: Even though my boy is now 4½ years old he still takes a pacifier to bed with him. He's ashamed of it and makes certain it's hidden when his friends come over. And he has also asked me to take it away. But if I do, he doesn't fall asleep for hours. He just lies there and sings to himself or gets out of bed and plays. MRS. J.W.

Let him have a bedlight and books and toys in his bed so he'll have something better to do at bedtime than sucking on a worn-out pacifier or crooning to himself.

Calls for Mandatory Gift of Rights-of-Way for School Sites

Ten Appleton aldermen have co-signed a resolution which would make it mandatory for persons selling school sites to the city to dedicate all land required for public street purposes.

The resolution, submitted at Wednesday night's special council meeting at which the southside school site acquisition was resolved, will be referred to committee.

Under normal circumstances when dealing with developers, and others, land is donated to the city for street right-of-ways.

Couple Dies Of Poisoning In Oshkosh

Coroner Tentatively Rules Deaths Result Of Double Suicide

OSHKOSH — An Oshkosh man and an Oshkosh woman died Thursday night, apparently of arsenic poisoning or drugs. Their deaths have tentatively been ruled a double suicide.

John A. Wilson, 320 Merritt Ave., died as he was being rushed to Mercy Hospital by Moore Ambulance. Mrs. Doris Kjemhus, 39, of 690A N. Main St., died shortly after she arrived at the hospital.

Just before he died, Wilson told an Oshkosh policeman, who found the pair lying on a bed in the downtown apartment of a friend, that they had taken arsenic. Police found a partially empty can of weed killer containing arsenic in the apartment. They also found three bottles of pills in Mrs. Kjemhus' purse.

County Coroner Art C. Miller said either the arsenic or the pills could have killed the pair. He tentatively ruled the deaths a double suicide, pending the results of blood tests from the State Crime Laboratory at Madison.

The man who lived in the apartment, Fred James, 13A Waugoo St., told police the couple had been at his apartment for most of the day and had been drinking for a long time. He said he went out to buy more beer about 11 p.m. Thursday and found them when he returned to his apartment about 11:30 p.m.

Kaukauna Sewage Project Back On Schedule After Heavy Rains

KAUKAUNA — An April 1968 completion date is still anticipated for the $664,111 addition, and alteration of the city's sewage treatment plant.

Albert Winters, plant superintendent, said Wednesday that despite delays caused by the rainy June weather, construction is "almost back to schedule." He indicated the original completion deadline would be met if everything "stays in line and the weather holds out."

Winters said the biggest problems now could be late deliveries of materials and a plumbers' strike in Green Bay which may affect Reeke Marold Co. Inc., the project's piping, plumbing, heating and ventilating contractor.

Sewage Untreated Completion of remodeling as soon as possible has taken on increased importance, because sewage presently is being dumped practically untreated into the Fox River.

Once the addition is completed, treatment will provide for an excess of 90 per cent biochemical oxygen-demand removal.

Winters said purity could even be between 95 and 100 per cent. Crews of Oudenhoven Co., Kaukauna, this week were pouring concrete for the walls of the

Urban Sprawl Predicted by Year 2000

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP)—By the year 2000, a sociologist says, the Eastern Seaboard, the southern shore of the Great Lakes and the West Coast will be sprawling "strip cities."

Dr. H. Theodore Groat, a Bowling Green State University sociologist, also said in a research project that population trends show that 5 of every 6 Americans will live in these urban chains by 2000—only 33 years from now.

Despite high standards of living, undreamed of comforts and a longer life span, life in America won't all be all milk and honey, he says.

Besides population and transportation problems—he estimates there will be 340 million Americans by the turn of the century—many uncertainties exist.

He said such questions as what will happen to privacy, whether man will be able to escape noise, or how many will react to new and more intense psychological pressures, remain to be answered.

Magazine Offered By Telephone May Not Really Be So 'Free'

Complaints are being received by the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce regarding phone solicitations by crews of magazine salesmen.

The usual "pitch" is that the prospective customer will receive several subscriptions at no charge and after listening to the entire sales pitch, a statement is made to the fact that a nominal weekly charge will be made for handling and mailing.

Investigation has proved that this per-week handling and mailing cost is equal to or exceeds the subscription rates of the magazines which are supposedly to be "given" to the prospective customer at no charge.

The public should be advised to use a little arithmetic in making decisions about this type of sales promotion. Chamber officials said.

Man Arraigned on Charge of Theft of $700 Worth of Coins

Michael D. Krause, 22, 120 E. Third St., Kaukauna, Thursday was arraigned in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 on a theft charge brought by Kaukauna police following investigation into the theft of about $700 in coins Monday.

Judge Gustave J. Keller continued the case to 1:30 p.m. today to allow Krause time to retain an attorney. Krause is in jail under $2,000 bond.

He is charged with stealing the money from Harold Eckert, 120½ E. Third St. The money reportedly was stolen Monday morning from Eckert's suitcase in his locked room.

Firemen Called When Bicycle Horn Blows

A bicycle which apparently decided to blow its own horn about 5:45 a.m. today brought Appleton firemen to the Henry Schreve residence, 2312 S. Harmon St.

The department was called when a horn blowing in the basement of the home disturbed Mrs. Schreve's mother. Schreve, the finance director of Appleton, is out of town.

Removal of batteries stopped the noise, which was caused by a short circuit.

aeration tank, a major feature of the activated-sludge method of treatment.

Plans also call for extensive remodeling of two clarifier tanks; building of two digestion tanks, a final clarifier, a chlorinating unit, a pump and blower control building and a sludge lagoon, and remodeling of the office.

Raw effluent will enter the new system through a bar screen which grinds up solids. A degriddler will remove sand and the fluid will pass into the primary clarifiers, where the solids and greases are separated and pumped to the digestion tanks.

Effluent from the clarifying tanks, plus about one-third of the solids from the digester, will be pumped into the aeration tank, where oxygen in compressed air forced into the tank, breaks down the bacteria.

Store Sludge Liquid from the aeration tank passes through a final clarifier and a chlorinator in the last step. Sludge from the digester tanks not treated by aeration will be transferred to a lagoon, where it will be stored for fertilizer or land fill.

The old plant did little more than remove solids and pass effluent through primary clarifiers.

The whole system will cost about $716,000, with the inclusion of miscellaneous expenses and engineering fees. It will have a capacity of 2,550,000 gallons a day, enough to meet the needs of Kaukauna and Combined Locks until 1985.

The new plant will meet requirements of the state, which had ordered the city to improve treatment since it was not meeting anti-pollution standards.

Upward Bounders Use Retaining Wall to Give 'Thanks' Message

The cement retaining wall on S. Drew Street below one of the Lawrence University footbridges has become a favorite place to paint messages in recent years. Almost invariably, the messages have been used to complain, to joke, or to advertise. Today the wall was put to an unprecedented use — to thank someone.

This morning it bore the neat message "Thanks, Mr. Walter and staff — Upward Bound, 1966-67." The program, for 50 students from Milwaukee's central city, closed today after two summers. All the Upward Bounders are now ready for college.

It took 22 days to get up the courage, but the young swimmer who fled — minus his expensive watch — when he and a companion were caught in a backyard pool early the morning of July 19, finally returned to claim the watch.

Well, in a way he returned to claim it.

The pool owner, who lives near Pierce Park, was awakened about 2 a.m. July 19 by the sound of splashing in his backyard swimming hole. Two boys fled when he turned on the outside light.

Boy Scouts Plan Trip to Expo '67

Thirty Boy Scouts from Troop 1, St. Joseph Catholic Church, will leave Sunday for a two-week tour which will include Expo '67 at Montreal.

The boys worked for eight months to earn the money for the trip, by selling books and first aid kits. They also had a car wash, a paper drive and a dance.

Charles Schmitt, scout leader, and Richard Novitzky, assistant leader, will be in charge of the trip.

The group will rent a bus for the trip and enroute, will visit SAC Air Force Base, Gateau Park, and Ottawa. On the way back they will visit Wellington Bay, Niagara Falls, Fort Erie and Detroit.

Recently Schmitt and five boys from the troop completed the 50-mile hike for a national scout award.

Tom McDaniels, Steve Ebben, Steve Dungan, Peter Qilcox and Doug Hankey composed the group, which started at Shawano and completed the trip at the Gardner Dam Camp. The trail was along the west side of the Wolf River.

Orbison Named to Co-Chairman Post

Will Help Direct United Givers '67-68 Drive

F. Harwood Orbison, 120 Riveriew Court, a veteran Red Feather campaigner, has been named co-chairman of the 1967-68 United Givers drive.

The president of Appleton Mills, who served as campaign chairman in 1956, and co-chairman in 1955, will be working closely with Cyrus Rachie, general chairman.

Orbison is familiar with the work of most of the Red Feather agencies through his position as vice president of the Community Fund in 1957 and president in 1958. At that time, he was instrumental in the reorganization of the Community Fund and Community Council into United Community Services (UCS).

Just this year, in an effort to further decrease the many drives for voluntary health and welfare services, the UCS moved into the United Givers Campaign, with the inclusion of four agencies, which previously had solicited funds independently. They are Family Service Association of the Fox Valley, Inc., Outagamie Association for Retarded Children, Sheltered Activity Center and Wisconsin Welfare Council.

Added last year were the Outagamie Chapter of the American Red Cross and the Men's Health Association of Outagamie County.

Orbison was re-introduced to the UCS board of directors at a special meeting at the Conway Motor Hotel Thursday noon. He had been a member of the board from 1956 through 1964.

In an interview Orbison said, "It was really a thrill to sit in a hard-working meeting and see a board of Appleton volunteer citizens do the job honestly and equitably it was appointed to do."

The UCS board met in a three-hour special session to review agency budgets as recommended by the year-around budget committee. The committee has been meeting with Red Feather agencies for the past two months.

John Torinus, UCS president, said he expects the board to set the United Givers goal at a meeting next Thursday noon.

Weyauwega Beauty Named Hostess at Fair

Barbara Prideaux Second Runnerup in Preview Pageant

An 18-year-old Weyauwega girl, Miss Barbara Prideaux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Prideaux, was the second runnerup in the beauty pageant Thursday night, which preceded the opening today of the 117th annual Wisconsin State Fair. Prideaux is editor of Weyauwega's weekly paper, "The Chronicle."

Miss Prideaux will act as a hostess during the 10-day event with Connie Lee Platts, 20, a coed at Eau Claire State University, who was crowned "Fairness of the Fair."

First runnerup was Miss Sandra Andresen, 19, Burlington. Some 3,000 persons watched the beauty pageant, which was part of the fair's preview night activities. Officials said 9,717 persons paid admissions for the preview night.

Administrator Vernon Wendland said he hoped that by the time the gates close Aug. 19, a million visitors will have paid their way in.

Today was press day at the fair, in honor of representatives of newspapers and the broadcast media.

Highlighting judging on opening day was competition in junior Holsteins, swine, steer on the hoof and sheep.

Judging Continues Judging in the senior or open division will continue throughout the week and contestants whose animals win blue ribbons in the junior group are eligible to compete in the open division.

At stake in the junior fair are more than $30,000 in premium awards.

Junior Fair supervisor Willis Freitag said junior fair participants will show 875 dairy cows, 225 beef cattle, 600 swine and 300 sheep, before their competition ends.

$20 Million Tax Refund Asked for American Motors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wisconsin's two senators have introduced a bill that would result in an immediate $20 million tax refund for financially troubled American Motors Corp.

Senators William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson, both Democrats, offered the bill Wednesday as a means to help the Wisconsin-based firm get through its current dollar crisis. Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., introduced a companion bill in the House.

The measure would allow the firm to apply losses from current operations to obtain an immediate refund.

The senators said the bill would not cost taxpayers anything because AMC could claim the same credit two years from now even if the bill was not passed and the firm operated at a profit.

Standing Committee on Urban Affairs Backed In Steiger Legislation

WASHINGTON — Congress- jurisdiction over urban pro-grams. They are the Commit-tees on Agriculture (food stamps), Banking and Currency (housing and urban renewal), the U. S. House of Representa-tives.

"The recent riots in our nation's cities are a challenge to the Congress to supply greater initiative and more effective oversight of our federal urban programs," the Congressman said.

The Congressman noted that eight separate standing commit-tees of the House now share jurisdiction over urban pro-grams. They are the Commit-tees on Agriculture (food stamps), Banking and Currency (housing and urban renewal), the U. S. House of Representa-tives. Education and Labor, Government Operations, Judiciary (crime, civil rights), Interstate and Foreign Commerce (transportation and communications), and Public Works (water pollution).

"While we must insist that the administration exercise greater coordination and control over existing urban programs," the Congressman said, "we also have a responsibility to put our own house in order."

"The present system makes it impossible for the Congress to consider the interrelationships between housing and education, between transportation and pollution, and between highways and open spaces."

"Hopefully the new Standing Committee on Urban Affairs would be composed of Members from each of these Committees who would bring considerable expertise to a comprehensive approach to urban problems."

"A new Committee could reduce the overlap and the operation at cross-purposes that necessarily characterizes much of our consideration of metropolitan problems at the present time."

He also emphasized that the proposal has been a Republican initiative since 1961, and supported by Republican Members of the House in the 87th, 88th, 89th and now the 90th Congress.

Seek Approval Of Regional Mail Center

Plans Must Mesh With Construction of Terminal Addition

BY DON CASTONIA

Post-Crescent Staff Writer OSHKOSH — Speedy approval of plans for the proposed regional postal center at Winnebago County Airport was urged Thursday night by postal officials.

At the urging of R. W. Van Sickle, from the Post Office Department regional real estate office in Milwaukee, the county board's Aviation Committee authorized Airport Mgr. S. J. Wittman and Drake Rowe, architect for the proposed new terminal, to meet with postal officials in Washington Monday.

Van Sickle and Oshkosh Postmaster Ray Novotny conferred with Rowe and Roland Kohlbeck, consultants from Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, Thursday night on plans for location of the facility.

Van Sickle presented plans for a structure 362 feet by 254 feet which would be located about 200 feet south of 20th Avenue and 80 feet east of Michigan Street, just east of the proposed terminal complex.

The layout of the structure varied from that proposed by the county's consulting firm only in location of some parking area and loading dock space. This is expected to be worked out in Washington Monday.

Negotiations County Corporation Counsel Gerald Engeldinger had suggested the lease for the land be negotiated before going ahead with plans for the building, but Van Sickle said the Post Office Department did not want to negotiate until they were sure the site utilization plans met with county approval.

Van Sickle said speed is necessary because "the situation here (Oshkosh) is very acute." Oshkosh serves as the regional postal center for 55 area post offices and the space situation at the downtown post office has been termed critical.

The planned facility at the airport would serve as the regional distribution center and would enable some mail to bypass the Chicago post office.

There has been no indication as to how receptive the Post Office Department will be to proposed lease terms on the

Control Tower Work at Port Delayed

OSHKOSH — Plans for the new control tower at Winnebago County Airport have been temporarily held up because of uncertainty of federal funds.

Supv. Alvin Staffeld, Neenah, chairman of the Aviation Committee, said Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) officials reported they do not know how much federal money will be available for the project and have recommended the county postpone its plans until more information is available.

The new tower, expected to cost in excess of $330,000, is needed before the new north-south runway can be opened for use. The present tower is located in the approach to the new runway.

Tentative approval was given the Oshkosh Area Chamber of Commerce to set up an industrial display on airport grounds Sept. 21-23 for "Wonderful Wisconsin Week." Exact location of the display will be worked out between the chamber and Airport Manager S. J. Wittman.

land. The department has indicated it wants a 30 year lease with eight additional five-year renewal options without renegotiation clauses. A figure of one cent per square foot was mentioned.

In a preliminary lease proposal discussed by the committee, Engeldinger suggested a lease starting at one cent per square foot, automatically increasing one-half cent every three years to 5½ cents at the end of 30 years.

The lease would then be renegotiated for every renewal period with the rent never to be less than it was for the preceding period.

Plans for the new terminal, which has been estimated at $1 million, will be presented to the county board Tuesday morning and, if sufficient information is available, a presentation also will be made on the postal facility.

County Again Denies Discrimination Charge

OSHKOSH — In a formal posed by Brennan and a copy filing with the Federal Aviation of the county's lease with War-Agency (FAA), Winnebago ren Basler who operates on the County has denied it has dis-county field.

The brief maintains that the discrimination charge is "false and without foundation" and that the county has the right to establish reasonable standards for operation of the airport.

Engeldinger also told the FAA their request for a written statement of the county's position was a "peculiar approach" since the county made its position clear in meetings in June and July and was told at that time a written record was not needed.

The FAA is conducting an investigation into the charge position clear in meetings in June and July and was told at that time a written record was not needed.

The Tempo Quickens

Stars Shine in Porter's 'Anything Goes' Show

BY WENDY LOOTS

OSHKOSH — A slow start faded as the tempo quickened and the Oshkosh Junior Theatre's Thursday night pro- duction of "Anything Goes," the group's first performance of the play in Oshkosh, turned into a jazzy product Cole Porter's musical comedy was meant to be.

The witty, fast-moving dia- logue and the abundant songs — 16 in all, including "Anything Goes," "It's Delovely" and "Blow Gabriel, Blow" — were enhanced by the performance of Kim Stoffel as Billy and Laurel Misch as Reno.

Stoffel acted and sang with flair through his role as the light-hearted yet smooth, Billy, who was forever changing identi- ties in hopes of winning Hope, played by Carol Buelow, on a cruise ship from the United States to England.

Miss Misch as Reno, the evangelist turned night club performer, started slowly. At times she was overpowered by the orchestra, but she soon proved herself capable of the long role. She put both voice and character into "Anything Goes" and "Blow Gabriel, Blow."

The light plot, conducive to interaction of the show's eight characters, is that of a mis- matched couple on their way to their wedding in England. They travel on a cruise ship with a collection of passengers, includ- ing a dowager and her daugh- ter; Public Enemy No. 13 and his coy moll; a young stuffy Englishman; Reno; Billy, and Billy's boss.

In the way to England the couple is rematched to the correct partners through a se- ries of confused events and masquerading characters in which public Enemy No. 13 portrays a slang-speaking min- ister and Billy is everything from a sailor to an old woman.

Carol Farnell is particularly fetching in her interpretation of Bonnie, the moll, a sweet, understanding young thing in spite of her gangster-style clothes. Peter Van Dyke's sea- sick Evelyn, the young Eng- lishman, also deserves atten- tion.

The chorus's rendition of the hand-clapping "Blow, Gabriel, Blow" showed coordinated ac- tion, singing and choreography to back up Miss Misch's solo.

Other cast members include Paul Muetzel as the nervous public Enemy No. 13, Terri Tangye as the dowager Mrs. Harcourt and Paul Wildenson as the sea-sick, drunken boss.

"Anything Goes" will be pre- sented again at the Grand Theater at 8:15 tonight and Saturday. It will then move to Rhinelander, where three more performances will be given.

Cooperative Educational Ser- vice Agency (CESA) 10 voted the invitation Thursday night during a progress report of consolidation of Stockbridge and Chilton districts.

The reorganization committee learned Thursday Hilbert had agreed to cooperate in three public meetings, one in each district. However, no represen- tative from the Hilbert board was present because CESA had indicated at the July 14 meet- ing, when Stockbridge commit- teed its district to definite consoli- dation plans in six months, that Hilbert be left out, and only Stockbridge and Chilton boards attend the meeting.

Chilton Supt. A. W. Gordon told the committee Stock- bridge's supervising principal, Paul Dobias, and himself had met on two occasions and he felt "the problems of transpor- tation could be solved easily." A map was presented, which showed all Stockbridge bound- aries having access to main highways Chilton currently is operating 15 buses and Stock- bridge, four, on double runs.

Show Figures

Enrollments of the two high schools showed Chilton with 590 students and Stockbridge, 140. Figures given for kindergarten through eighth grade were Chil- ton, 1,265, and Stockbridge, 423. Complete figures for Chilton's second grade were not avail- able. All totals in the elemen- tary departments in both dis- trict included children in paro- chial schools.

Projected high school enroll- ment for next year was set at 759 by the two administrators.

Equalized valuation figures presented were Chilton, $37,700,000 and Stockbridge, $8,900,000 for a combined $46,600,000. Debt in the Chilton district is $528,000 and in Stockbridge, $229,000. Comparative curricula also were presented.

CESA committee members felt that for the benefit of long- range planning, similar infor- mation should be presented by Hilbert, although it was empha- sized the invitation to have them participate in the joint meeting should not be interpret- ed as "trying to involve them in consolidation." They pointed out that including them in planning now was advantageous to "hav- ing them pushed into it later."

Majority Satisfied

Clarence Stengel, CESA board member from Hilbert, said he believed 80 per cent of the persons in the district hadn't given consolidation any thought "because they have no prob- lems" but felt that the other 20 per cent would welcome the opportunity. He pointed out that the only other combination would be Brillion, and expressed his personal opinion that the

Peters Preserves White Sox' 2 to 1 Triumph Over Detroit

Indians' Hinton Doubles, Homers In 13-Inning Win

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Eddie Stanky, a firm believer in the "There's no tomorrow" and salvaged a 2-1 victory over school of baseball thinking, all ways has been ready to go to any legitimate lengths to win a game.

The one-time Walking Man of the Brooklyn Dodgers, now the manager of the Chicago White Sox, found himself in a ticklish situation Thursday night.

And he didn't hesitate any longer than during his playing days when he'd casually stick a hip in front of a fast ball to get on base.

"You do what you have to," Stanky shrugged.

So, with a one-run lead to protect and the bases loaded in the eighth, he routed his starting pitching ace, Gary Peters, off the bench, sent him out in relief in the "There's no tomorrow" and salvaged a 2-1 victory over school of baseball thinking, all ways has been ready to go to any legitimate lengths to win a game.

It preserved the White Sox' two-game lead atop the American League standings.

Bob Allison's two home runs led Minnesota to a 5-0 conquest of Washington, and Chuck Hinton's clutch double with two out in the 13th provided Cleveland with a 2-1 edge over Baltimore in the only other American League games scheduled.

The White Sox, who had lost four of six games going into the Detroit test, had a 2-1 lead going into the bottom of the eighth. The Tigers promptly loaded the bases with one out on two walks and an error. After Mickey Stanley popped up, Stanky sent in Peters.

Peters promptly struck out pinch hitter Norm Cash to end the inning and the White Sox were out of trouble.

Ken Boyer's homer off relief pitcher Mike Marshall in the top of the eighth broke a 1-1 tie and provided the winning margin. A two-base error and Pete Ward's pinch single drove in the first White Sox run in the seventh.

Detroit had taken a 1-0 lead in the fourth on a single by Al Kaline, a walk and Stanley's two-out single.

Allison's two homers, both 400-foot plus shots, gave him 18 for the year, drove in three runs and provided all the offensive support needed by Jim Perry, who limited Washington to five hits. Jack Hernandez singled in the other two runs.

Allison, who also doubled, hit his first homer in the fifth, breaking a scoreless string of 18 innings.

Hinton drove in both Indian runs against Baltimore, clubbing the first pitch of the game for a homer and then settling in with a run-scoring double with two out in the 13th. Vern Fuller, who had singled, came home with the winning run.

Stan Williams went all the way for the victory, allowing only five hits, walking three and striking out 14, high for the season in the American League.

Assessing the potential value of the net, Chandler pointed out, with the defensive linemen as big as they are today, some of them 6-8 or 6-9, and they make a 2-yard penetration, that's an awfully big target."

Hitting Ball Well

The soft-spoken Oklahoman, who says, "I didn't have a year I was happy with, period" in 1966, is happy with the way things have been going in '67.

"I've been hitting the ball excellently," he matter-of-factly noted explaining, "I just made up my mind I'm not going to make all of them."

"Last year, I guess I had an idea I had to make 'em all," the former National Football League punting champion observed with a dry smile.

"I know one thing — if I kick the ball the way I can kick it, I'm going to make more than I miss . . . it hurts you when you miss 'em, but you can't let it bother you."

In Thursday's session, the Packers tested their offense against the defense they expect the Pittsburgh Steelers to employ in Saturday night's Bishop's Charities game at Lambeau Field. The Packer defense also worked against the anticipated Steeler offense.

Rex Baxter Jr. Has 3-Stroke Lead at Akron

Rain, Wind Play Havoc With Pros At Firestone Club

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Rex Baxter Jr., with only one tournament victory to show for his 10 years as a pro, is in an unfamiliar but pleasant position.

The 31-year-old Texan took a three-stroke lead into today's second round of the $100,000 American Golf Classic.

Baxter, who offhand couldn't remember the last time he held a lead in a tournament, shot a four-under-par 34-32—66 Thursday over the 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course which had his fellow pros moaning and groaning.

Rains, a new watering system and 20-mile-per-hour wind gusts had the lengthy layout playing at its very toughest.

"That's four shots lower than any round I've ever had on this course," said the happy Baxter.

Won in 1963

Baxter's only tour victory came in the 1963 Cajun Classic. Only six others in the field of 124 golfers managed to break par and all came in with 69s.

They were George Archer with 35-34, Bill Collins 36-33, Bill Martindale 36-33, Jack McGowan 34-35, Kermit Zarley 36-33 and Randy Glover 36-33.

Only Glover in that group has a tournament victory this year, and that came in the Azalea Open, while Zarley is the top money winner and ranks 31st on the list.

Some of the lads who are expected to apply the pressure to Baxter were another shot behind.

Steelers Get First Test Against Packers Saturday Night

Austin Likens Bill Nelsen to Bart Starr

By JACK HAND

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Bill Austin thinks he may have another Bart Starr in Bill Nelsen, a fifth-year quarterback who is about ready to bloom into stardom.

"Nelsen reminds me of Starr in 1959," said the coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers. "He is beginning to act like Bart. He has a good touch with the ball and is throwing the long ball better than ever. He has gained confidence and knows why we do certain things."

"Bill is learning how to read the defenses. He can find the second receiver now when they cover the first. We were hurt last year by waiting too long for our primary receivers to get loose. As a result, our quarterback (Ron Smith during most of the season) was thrown for a record 62 times."

Had Surgery

Nelsen suffered an injury to his left knee in the second game of the 1966 season after hobbling through the 1965 season on two bad knees. He had undergone surgery on the right knee in the winter of 1965 and again on the left knee last October. He finally returned to action for the last three games in 1966.

During his recuperative period, Nelsen sat in the press box with Don Heinrich, the quarterback coach, who sent in every play during the Steeler season.

Heinrich found this enforced vacation for Nelsen the best possible training method.

Nelsen lost one of his best targets in the trade with Philadelphia that sent Gary Ballman to the Eagles for fullback Earl Gros and guard Bruce Van.

Austin's big concern is to bolster his offense by strengthening the offensive line. Poor pass protection and inadequate blocking contributed to the in total offense and rushing.

Strong Runner

The addition of Gros, a strong runner who was with Green Bay when Austin was an assistant coach under Vince Lombardi, gives the coach a chance for a big-man attack. He can use Gros and Bill Asbury in the same backfield and plans to do just that.

Dick Hoak, Cannonball Butler, Amos Bullocks and Don Why, a quick but untested rookie from San Diego State, are the other runners.

Rookie tackle Rockne Freitas, 6-foot-6 and 265, from Oregon State, and center Bill Smith, 6-2, 250, from Oregon, may force their way into the front line that includes center Ray Mansfield, tackles Fran O'Brien and Roger Pillath and guards Larry Gagner and Ralph Wenzel.

Van Dyke and Sammy Davis, of Allen U. are others who rate a long look. The Steelers also picked up John Brown, veteran tackle, from Cleveland, on waivers.

Need Good Defense

"You've got to have a good defense to win in this league," said Austin, who is starting his second year as head coach of the Steelers. Although he respects St. Louis, Cleveland and New York, the other teams in the Century Division, he thinks Pittsburgh finally has a chance to win its first division title.

Like all the other coaches, Austin is scanning the daily waivers as the clubs cut away excess material. As of now, his defensive line will be John Baker and Ben McGee at ends and Ken Kortas and Chuck Hinton at tackles. Riley Gunnels, veteran tackle, is lost, probably for the season, due to a kidney ailment.

Ray May, a well-built rookie from Southern California, is a good bet to crack the regular alignment of linebackers. The holdover regulars are John Campbell, Bill Saul and Andy Russell. Rod Bredehoeve may be the fifth.

The six defensive backs who figure to make the club are veterans Brady Keys, Marv Woodrick, Kalocsai registering 54-4 1/4 inches in the men's triple jump.

Three South Hurlers Fire 1-Hitters; Hurley Drives in 3 Runs

Greg Fulcer, Mike Barlow, and Ted Ogney combined for a 1-hitter and John Hurley drove in three runs as the Southern Division All-Stars beat the North, 4-1, in the Appleton Babe Ruth All-Star game at Goodland Field Thursday night.

Jeff Miller got the lone hit, a triple off Fulcer in the third of the 1966 season after hobbling through the 1965 season on two bad knees. ## Steelers' McGee, Magac to Have Knee Surgery

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Defensive end Ben McGee and offensive guard Mike Magac of the Pittsburgh Steelers will undergo knee surgery today and be sidelined at least six weeks, the National Football League club said Thursday.

A Steeler spokesman said McGee injured his left knee in a quarterback Ron Smith, and scrimmage several days ago punter Frank Lambert Mike Magac hurt his right knee in a blocking drill.

Both were thought at first to be off three Northern pitchers, have strained ligaments but the club's physician said it would be necessary to operate.

Coach Bill Austin said Lloyd Voss would take over McGee's spot and Bruce Van Dyke will be charged with the defeat against the Packers at Green Bay Saturday night.

Europe's Trackmen Win by 14 Points

The Americas Capture 6 Firsts In Final Night's Competition

MONTREAL (AP) — There won't be a re-match until 1969, so track and field coaches on both sides of the Atlantic will have ample time to sit back and take a long hard look at their athletes.

Europe won the inaugural European vs. Americas track and field match by a two-night total of 169 points to 155, with the meter relay Thursday night and next of the biennial series was within one-tenth of a second scheduled for Europe two years hence.

The Americas team had ended Thursday night's final stage with a slim 79-74 point edge, only to see the final figures give the opposition a 109-100 advantage in men's events, and a 60-55 margin in the women's.

Poor Weather

Unfortunately the match was plagued by poor weather, as dampness prevailed the first night and cool temperatures and wind gusts of 20 miles an hour kept the athletes from top performance on the second.

European athletes placed first in nine of the events Thursday night while the Americas came home in front six times. The latter also won the men's 1,600-meter relay for an additional five points.

However, track officials, after the match was completed, pointed to the fact the Europeans had finished one-two in six of Thursday night's contests, while the Americas team had managed the feat only once. Herve D'Encasuse of France, the pole vault winner, was named the men's outstanding athlete and the outstanding field athlete.

The outstanding male trackman was Vince Matthews of New York who ran on the 1,600-meter relay Thursday night and was within one-tenth of a second of the world record in winning the men's 400 meters Wednesday.

Named the outstanding woman athlete and the outstanding male field performer was Margitta Gummel of East Germany, winner of the women's shot put.

The outstanding woman runner was Madeleine Manning of Cleveland winner of the women's 800 meters.

As in the opening night competition, the Americas' team got off to a fast start.

Wins First Event

Ron Whitney of Boulder, Colo., won the first event, the 400-meter hurdles, in 50.1 first event and John Carlos of New York beat favored Roger Bambuck of France in the 200 meters.

The Americas continued their early mastery of the track when Mrs. Cherrie Sherrard of Oakland, Calif., and Mamie Rollins of Chicago gave their side its only one-two finish of the night in the women's 80-meter hurdles, finishing in 10.9 and 11 seconds, respectively.

However, the 5,000-meter event was a different story, with Lajos Meccer of Hungary and Gaston Roelands of Belgium taking early lead and soon finding themselves well ahead of Juan Martinez of Mexico and Louis Scott of Detroit. Meccer won.

Miss Manning won by inches over Vera Nikolic of Yugoslavia in the women's 800 meters. Both were timed at 2:02.6.

Franz-Josef Kemper of West Germany had no trouble in winning the men's 800 meters in 1:49.3. Jean-Pierre Dufresne of France was second.

Administration Setback

Zablocki Votes Against Limitless Police Training

By FRANCES McKUSICK

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Wisconsin House members supported, eight to two, a Republican amendment to the House anti-crime bill which was approved late Tuesday on a 256 to 147 vote.

The amendment, which would restrict the authority of the U. S. Attorney General in allocating funds of $50 million for police training programs, was supported by all Badger state Republicans and one Democrat, Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, Milwaukee.

Breaks Tradition

Zablocki's vote outside of democratic ranks represented a break in tradition for the Milwaukee congressman, who almost without exception supports Administration measures.

And the stripping of the power of the attorney general to allocate the $50 million authorized for crime control wherever he chose, as provided in the original Administration bill, was considered one of the severest set-backs President Johnson has had in this session of Congress.

Bill Passes

The bill, which also contains $25 million for riot-control measures, was passed 377-33 with all members of the Wisconsin delegation recorded in the "yes" column.

Voting for the Republican amendments, sponsored by Rep. William T. Cahill, New Jersey, in addition to Zablocki, were Reps. Henry C. Schadeberg, Burlington; John W. Byrnes, Green Bay; Vernon W. Thompson, Richland Center; Melvin R. Laird, Marshfield; William A. Steiger, Oshkosh; Alvin E. O'Konski, Mercer and Glenn R. Davis, New Berlin, all Republicans.

Voting against the amendment were Reps. Robert W. Kastenmeier, Watertown, and Henry S. Reuss, Milwaukee, both Democrats.

Youth Sprains Ankle in Bicycle-Truck Collision

Minor injuries resulted to David P. Backhaus, 10, 116 E. North St. in a truck-bicycle collision in the 300 block of N. Division Street.

Appleton police said the boy suffered a possible sprained ankle. The truck was driven by Donald Ortlieb, route 3, Chilton.

Ortlieb was going south on Division when the bicycle pulled out from the curb in front of a parked vehicle, police said. The bicycle is owned by Larry Clark, 716 N. Superior St.

Wisconsin Cheese

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin cheddar cheese prices were unchanged this week, and the market was termed quiet but steady by the Agricultural Marketing Service Friday.

Supplies of all styles were fully ample. But major city buying interest continued to be seasonally slow to fair, the service said.

American cheese production decreased 3 per cent during the week ending Aug. 3 compared to the previous week.

However, American cheese output was up 8 per cent more than the corresponding week a year ago, and 13 per cent higher than the five-year-average for that week. Production was estimated at 25.8 million pounds.

Federal price support purchases July 27-Aug. 8 totaled 403,200 pounds of processed cheese and 682,172 pounds of natural cheese from Wisconsin points.

Cumulative purchases since April 1 throughout the nation amounted to 48.3 million pounds of processed cheese and 26.8 million pounds of natural cheese. No purchases were made in a like period one year ago.

The state's Swiss cheese market was unsettled during the week. Prices were unchanged on higher grades, but 2½ cents lower on grade C block.

Supplies of Grade A block ranged from barely adequate to adequate. Offerings of grade B and C Swiss were ample to excessive. Grade D supplies were irregularly distributed, but light interest makes the offerings plentiful for current needs.

Biafran Bomber Hits Town In Northern Part of Nigeria

Government Admits Takeover Of Oil Fields by Rebel Forces

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A Biafran plane bombed the northern Nigerian town of Kaduna, killing one person and injuring several others, sources in Lagos reported today.

The target for the 20-minute raid Thursday night was not immediately known, but two recently acquired Czech jet fighter-bombers were at Kaduna Airport earlier this week.

The plane, not officially identified, probably was one of Biafra's two B26 bombers.

A Nigerian government spokesman confirmed Thursday that Biafran forces and Nigerian army mutineers have taken control of the oil-rich Midwest region, but he said they will not hold it for long.

Enugu Capture

The spokesman added that since the Biafrans are attacking out of their own region, "the push to Enugu will be much easier now."

Enugu is the capital of the breakaway Eastern region now called Biafra and the headquarters of its leader, Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu. The Biafran

U.S. Military Sent Back Into Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — Families of U.S. military personnel at Wheelus Air Force Base evacuated during the Mideast war now are returning to the big U.S. base in Libya, State Department officials say.

This is in line with the recently announced end to the ban on travel by Americans to Libya and a number of other Arab countries.

The travel embargo was imposed by the U.S. government during the hostilities and thousands of Americans were evacuated from Middle East lands.

State Department officials estimated that about 2,500 dependents of U.S. Air Force personnel at Wheelus were among those evacuated from Libya.

Meanwhile negotiations were reported to have begun in Tripoli Thursday on how long U.S. forces will stay at Wheelus.

The present U.S.-Libyan agreement for American use of the base is not due to expire until 1971. However some Libyans have demanded that U.S. forces leave before then, and pressure for this mounted during the recent Mideast crisis.

Young Sisters Found Raped, Slain In Watts; Police Have No Clues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police said today they were without clues to the killer-rape of two young sisters, whose bodies were found in a vacant lot in Watts.

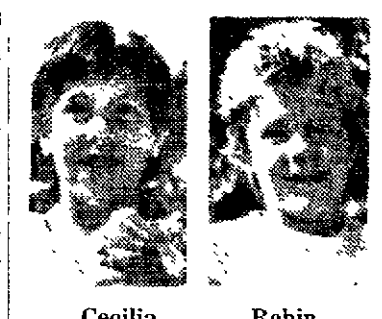

"Not one iota. Nothing," said Detective Lt. James Hamilton.

Roberta Ann "Robin" Barili, 6, and Cecilia Renee Barili, 7, were found nearly nude and strangled about 25 miles from their home in Altadena.

A resident of the south Los Angeles district spotted their bodies Thursday morning after a massive overnight search in the Altadena area. Each wore only a striped blouse. Scarfs were twisted around their necks.

"They were dead when they

lived in a racially mixed section of Altadena, which has about 40 per cent Negroes.

"It appears more likely that it was the work of a sexual deviate," said Sheriff's Sgt. Walt Thornton.

Officers fanned out through Altadena and Watts looking for clues. They are checking five footprints and several empty beer cans found near the bodies.

At his stucco home, the girls' father, a purchasing agent for Computer-Measurements Co. in Sylmar, told newsmen he had no idea who could have killed his daughters.

Barili, 37, said his daughters — "friendly, pretty and full of life" had gone out to play in the neighborhood Wednesday afternoon. He and his wife began looking for them for supper at 6 p.m.

They searched with neighbors until 8:30 p.m., when they called the Altadena sheriff's substation.

Barili said the girls had only two cents with them and would not have gone shopping.

"They had been warned about not talking to strangers," said Barili. "They knew not to get into strange cars."

The Barilis have two other children — Richard, 8, and Ruth, 2½.

Dirksen Bid Rejected

Financing for Soviet Auto Plant Might be Blocked Despite Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen lost a battle in his bid to block U.S. financing for a Soviet auto plant. But he nonetheless may have won the war.

The Senate rejected 51 to 33 Thursday a proposed Dirksen amendment that would have prohibited the Export-Import Bank from supplying the loan Italy's Fiat Motor Co. seeks for U.S. machine tools for the auto plant.

But the Senate later passed another amendment by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., which the sponsor said may accomplish the same purpose.

Byrd's proposal, adopted 56 to 26, would deny Export-Import Bank financing to any non-Communist nation that trades with North Vietnam.

Not Specific

Byrd said his amendment wasn't aimed at the Fiat-Soviet deal, but may block it all the same.

That's because Italy is on the list of non-Communist nations which traded with North Vietnam in 1966.

The effect of defeating Dirksen's amendment was to leave the President with discretionary authority to approve such transactions as the Soviet auto plant if he felt they were in the national interest.

But Byrd's amendment would limit that authority and Dirksen was prepared today to try to impose new restrictions on presidential authority. The GOP leader's amendment would require the President to notify Congress 60 days before the transaction was consummated. Either the Senate or House could kill it by majority vote in that period.

Presidential Waivers

The proposed amendment also would apply to presidential waivers required for any Export-Import Bank financing of arms sales to poorer countries. The Senate voted 48 to 40 Wednesday to keep this White House power in the bill.

Byrd, in arguing for his amendment, said: "If we are going to draft our young men and take them away from their families and send them to fight in Vietnam, then the least we can do is to see that taxpayers' funds are not used to assist those trading with our enemy." Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, floor manager for the bill extending the bank's lending authority five years, said he knew the proposal "has a tremendous emotional appeal in the midst of this war." But the Maine Democrat said it was impossible to tell how it could be enforced against U.S. allies and emphasized that non-Communist nations' trade with North Vietnam had dropped to $12 million last year.

U.S.-Soviet Exchanges Might Start

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — What is believed to be a major step in a long-sought technical exchange program between the United States and the Soviet Union will be taken when a top Russian space scientist delivers a paper here Monday, the Huntsville Times said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has announced that Alex M. Letov, chairman of the Soviet Committee on Automatic Control, will address the National Conference on Guidance Control and Flight Dynamics beginning Monday.

The conference is sponsored by the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics. Letov, the Times said Thursday, ordinarily would not be allowed to visit Huntsville and Madison County, but will appear through special arrangements set up by the State Department in Washington.

Fear for Their Safety

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some members of Congress are getting edgy about their own safety during deliberations wide open to the public.

In the Senate, its 100 members sit and stroll about in a pit 113 by 80 feet, within easily lobbing distance of the 611 gallery seats above and surrounding them.

In the House of Representatives, at the other end of the Capitol, up to 435 legislators at a time sit and mill about in another ornate pit, 139 by 92 feet, wide open to the 624 gallery seats above and about them.

No protective barriers intervene in either chamber. Cameras are checked outside. But although a handful of plainclothes detectives sit casually among the visitors, ladies clasp handbags in their laps; gentlemen reach, unmolested, into their pockets.

When Will It Be?
"When will it be?" Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., asked his House colleagues this week. "A year from now? Next week? Later this afternoon?"

"Does anyone doubt that it is only a matter of time before the odds catch up with this chamber and violence visits us again?" he asked.

The event that agitated Jacobs was the intrusion into the House gallery Monday of 75 to 100 Harlem demonstrators demanding rat control legislation. Some battled fiercely with Capitol police—one of whom remains hospitalized—before being ejected. The House had adjourned minutes earlier.

One demonstrator promised the group would return next week—with rats.

Jacobs and Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W.Va., among others, want some protection.

"The galleries," Hechler said, "should be enclosed with sound-proof, transparent covering, with the floor debates piped into the galleries."

Plexiglass Shield
Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, went Hechler one better. "There ought to be a plexiglass shield around the gallery," Gross told a newsmen, "and there ought to be a wire mesh dropped from the ceiling so you couldn't throw grenades down into the House."

But there are other members of Congress who take a cooler view—and one, Rep. George H. Fallon, D-Md., speaks with some authority.

Fallon was wounded March 1, 1954, when Puerto Rican fanatics opened fire with pistols from the southwest gallery into a nearly full chamber. Five congressmen were wounded—one seriously. Fallon, who was shot through the hip, is the only one of the five still in Congress.

Greater Risks
"They talked about this glass shield then, too," Fallon recalled to a newsmen. "But I just don't like the idea of separating the people in the galleries from the members of Congress."

De Gaulle Gall Shocks All, Even French

Aged President Long Has Been Walking Fragile Tightrope

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — For almost a decade French President Charles de Gaulle has been walking a fragile tightrope although with his self-confidence it probably seemed as sturdy as a concrete highway.

It's getting frayed as he gets older. He is 76. Yet his presidency has another six years to go. He has done historic service for France but already is talked of as a man who belonged in another century.

The French commentator, Robert Aron, said De Gaulle has a "Napoleonic or Sun King concept and shows even when he claims to be an innovator he is often a reactionary."

Former President Harry S. Truman had the same idea four years ago saying De Gaulle sounds "more like the same old Napoleon brandy with a strong dash of Machiavellian cynicism. He is in any event over a century too late."

And a fellow-officer said of him over 30 years ago: "He is like a man taking his statue for a walk."

Peak of Crudity

De Gaulle can be crude and gracious but he never matched the clumsiness he showed last month when he visited Canada as its honored guest for its centennial.

Carried away by his French nationalism while addressing a crowd of French Canadians, less than 10 per cent of whom are agitating for separation from Canada, De Gaulle shouted in their support: "Free Quebec."

The shock waves from this bit of gall by De Gaulle, who contributed to discontent if not revolt in a country where he was a guest, was felt around the world, including France.

The Canadian government showed remarkable restraint by saying the least it could say. It called his remarks "unacceptable." He went home in a huff. Some of his critics called him "senile."

Home Criticism

At home he was under criticism not only for the Quebec caper but for his domestic and foreign policies. As the years go by his popularity goes down. The Gaullists have practically no edge in Parliament.

Thin-skinned as always Thursday he attacked his critics, calling them "apostles of decline" with a "strong passion for abasement."

Step by step, as he grows older, he removes himself further from his wartime allies, the United States and Britain, while antagonizing them. He refers to them with a disdain hardly concealed as those "Anglo-Saxons."

Most recently he has been calling for American withdrawal from Vietnam although it was De Gaulle who, immediately after World War II, sent French troops into Vietnam to recoup it as a colony. And out of that grew the war which has been going on since, even though the French were defeated and ousted.

Against Israel

He sided with Moscow and the Arabs against Israel in the June Mideast war. And here are some other things done by this Frenchman who still calls himself a reliable ally.

He banned the British from the European Common Market; refused to agree to a nuclear test ban treaty; advocated the neutralization of Southeast Asia; recognized the sovereignty of the Red Chinese over mainland China; crippled the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by pulling his troops from its command; appealed to West Germany and other European countries to assert their national independence and escape any domination by the United States.

Third World

Yet, he has proposed France as the likely leader of a "third world." Despite his ego, which increasingly looks more eccentric than unusual, France owes him an endless debt.

He was the symbol of French resistance and revival in World War II. And in 1958, when he returned to power which he has held since, France was close to civil war. He snatched it out of chaos.

But despite all this he has failed to assure orderly succession or stability for France when his presidency is up, which won't be until 1973. He himself predicted what he thought lies ahead: "After me, a mess."

Influenza Outbreaks Predicted This Winter

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Serious outbreaks of influenza are expected this winter, the National Communicable Disease Center says.

The report, released Thursday, said flu outbreaks were mild last winter and as a result, more people have lost their immunity to the disease.

SALVO

A COLUMN FOR DRAFTEES, SERVICEMEN AND VETERANS

BREAKING THE BAD NEWS

BY JERRY T. BAULCH

For The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It's a tough task, breaking the news to relatives of a man killed, wounded, missing or captured in Vietnam.

There is no way to predict what the reaction will be, but the services have devised a personalized procedure for such occasions.

Gone are the days when "regrets" arrived in the form of a cold, terse telegram. Now the next-of-kin is informed personally by a uniformed member of the military services, and offered help as long as needed.

Even so a few heartbreaking errors do occur, partly because casualty reports have to pass through many hands.

A small, simple error can cause great anguish. Take the case of parents notified that their Marine son had been killed on May 2. Actually he had not reached Vietnam until mid-May. Moreover the parents had special grounds for hoping the report of death was wrong because the Marine's father was reported killed in World War II, and turned up O. K. later.

But the son was indeed killed — on May 23. The digit had been dropped from the date in transmission from Vietnam.

Men Fill Out Report

One of the things each serviceman is required to do annually is fill out a record, which includes who is to be notified in case he is killed, wounded, captured or missing.

It doesn't have to be a wife or parent. As one man put it to me: "I told 'em under no circumstances to notify my wife if anything happens to me. She'd go sky high. I put down my son's name to be told first."

Or a man may specify that his wife or parents be notified by a clergyman rather than the usual uniformed military representative.

When a man suffers minor wounds his relatives are not notified unless he requests it. In the case of serious wounds, it is mandatory that the next-of-kin be advised.

After the verbal notification that a man is killed, missing or captured, the adjutant general of the service, or chief of personnel in the Navy's case, sends an official notification letter.

Report from C.O.

The secretary of the service and the President usually send letters of condolence. And later there is a letter through military channels from the man's commanding officer giving all circumstances available that good taste and military security permit about the man's death or disappearance. It's not easy, however, to know what happens in many cases in the heat of battle.

Within a day or so after the first notification, a casualty assistance officer visits the next-of-kin to offer all help he can. His job, in case of death, is to help with funeral arrangements, tell what options there are, where national cemeteries are located, and inform them of all federal death benefits.

The assistance officer also makes sure the family knows from the man's emergency data card where his will and other papers are filed.

In the case of a man missing or captured, the assistance officer keeps in contact with the family until the man's status is resolved. The Central Casualty Office then continues to offer help and provide whatever information becomes available about the man.

A man's record of emergency data contains the designation of persons to receive specific percentages of his pay in case he is captured or missing.

If it is found that the amount allotted is not sufficient to care for the family's needs, the services can provide added funds up to the limits of amounts available in the man's pay account.

In addition, the assistance officer counsels and helps the family in getting emergency loans if needed.

The assistance officer makes available advice of legal officers where needed.

The dependents continue to receive medical care on military posts or through the government — financed civilian care medical program.

G. I. Q. BOX

Dear Jerry: Our son enlisted in the U. S. Coast Guard and is now in boot camp. After he has completed his hitch, which is four years, is his obligation over for Uncle Sam?

Mrs. HJMcD, Springfield, Mass.

Dear Mrs. HJMcD: Everybody has a six-year military obligation, counting active and reserve time. But from a practical point of view, after your son finishes his four years of active duty the Coast Guard will not require him to join a unit or attend weekly drills and summer camp.

Dear Jerry: My son is in a National Guard unit that is to be abolished. Does that mean he will be drafted into the Army for active duty? He entered the Guard in August 1965, has attended all meetings and has had two weeks training. He is now in Ft. Leonard Wood for six months of training but this tour has been cut to four months.

Dear Mrs. AC, Midland, Ga.

In case a unit is abolished the National Guard says it will try to find a new unit for these people. And your son will have three years in which to find a new assignment.

Dear Jerry: My friend was drafted. A couple of months later I saw him and asked why he wasn't in the Army. He informed me they had kicked him out because he was "untrainable." What does that mean? Was he dishonorably discharged?

JML, South Bend, Ind.

Dear JML: I can't say positively what happened to your friend without knowing the details of his case and seeing his record. But 'sounds as if he got an "unsuitable" discharge, which means for physical or personality reasons the Army finds he just won't fit. That's different than another type of administrative discharge called "undesirable," which is on moral grounds. Neither of these is a "dishonorable" discharge by a court martial.

Dear Jerry: My husband was drafted in August 1963 and spent two years in active duty. When he was released from the service in August 1965 he was placed in a control group instead of an active reserve unit. It was our understanding that he would spend three years in the control group and one year in active reserves to complete his six year obligation. Last month he received a letter informing he has now been placed in a unit. He now understands he will have to spend two full years in the active unit, which means he would be in inactive reserves about five months. Doesn't the year and a half he spent in the control group count at all.

Mrs. CS, Arlington, Va.

Basically a draftee is required after his two years active duty to spend three years in an active reserve unit. And then if he doesn't want to continue active he can spend the last year in the standby reserve. But a lack of unit assignments prevents things from being that simple. So men just out of draft active duty are assigned to control groups, or pools, where they only do two weeks of summer training or nothing at all. But they can be assigned to an active reserve unit at any time a vacancy fits their training.

Grandpa Johnson

LBJ's Day Starts With Babysitting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson more than anyone else is enjoying the two-week visit of his infant grandson to the White House.

First thing every morning, the President takes little Patrick Lyndon Nugent into his bed and props his grandson on the pillows for a breakfast visit. "He's the only one who gets up early around here," the President joshed to a reporter. From feeding baby Lyn his bottle to showing him off to high-level officials, Grandfather Johnson has been having a great time as a babysitter. He says his blue-eyed, blond grandson is "a great fellow."

Return This Weekend
Parents Luci and Patrick J. Nugent are to return from the Bahamas this weekend to re-trieve their offspring.

The President and the First Lady have been buggy walkers and baby sitters for their only grandchild. Passing tourists have seen the baby with Mrs. Johnson or nurse Mary Gfeller on the White House South Lawn.

But 7-week-old Lyn sleeps too much to suit the President, who sneaks high-level luncheon guests in for a glimpse of his napping grandson. The baby has been trotted out for photographers and reporters from the day he arrived. He slept or yawned through most of those encounters to the amusement of his grandfather.

Johnson, who says he's "very fond of children," couldn't wait when Lyn arrived July 31 to take the baby off to a birthday party for another namesake—1-year-old John Lyndon Valenti, son of former presidential assistant Jack Valenti. Though Luci was there, the President insisted on carrying his grandson about the whole time amid the excited party crowd of 25 small youngsters.

Luci complained the baby was exhausted because grandpa "bounces him, tickles him, teases him and squeezes him."

But nurse Gfeller reported River is a vital link in the Hanoi-Haiphong transportation system that joins up with the railroad facilities leading to China, spokesmen said.

The raids were carried out by U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief and F4C Phantom pilots. The command said complete bomb damage assessment was not yet available. There were no other details.

Hit Power Plant
U.S. Navy planes struck a Hanoi power plant 1.1 miles from the center of the capital May 19. Today's attacks represented a renewed intensification of the air war over North Vietnam.

A U.S. Air Force Phantom jet returning from a combat mission was destroyed in a crash landing at the Da Nang Air Base. It surged out of control and smashed into two houses at the end of the runway, killing the navigator and two elderly Vietnamese civilians. The pilot survived. It was not announced whether the plane had taken part in the Hanoi raid.

On Thursday, U.S. fighter-bombers streaked through heavy Communist antiaircraft fire and damaged heavily two big North Vietnamese railroad yards north of Hanoi and Haiphong. Ground action was generally light, despite 34 continuing allied operations.

Rail Bridge In Capital Knocked Out

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck within 1.7 miles of the center of Hanoi today, and pilots reported knocking out a key bridge linking the North Vietnamese capital with rail lines running into Red China.

The U.S. Command said four direct bomb hits dropped the center span over the east channel of the mile-long Doumer highway and railroad bridge. The long bridge over the Red River is a vital link in the Hanoi-Haiphong transportation system that joins up with the railroad facilities leading to China, spokesmen said.

The raids were carried out by U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief and F4C Phantom pilots. The command said complete bomb damage assessment was not yet available. There were no other details.

Middle East Hears Belligerent Notes

Nasser Aide Says Renewal Of War Virtually Inevitable

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
President Gamal Abdel Nasser's closest confidant predicted today that renewed war with Israel is virtually inevitable, and King Hussein warned that Jordan would fight again unless the Israelis give back Old Jerusalem.

The belligerent notes were sounded as Yugoslav President Tito opened talks in Cairo with Nasser in an effort to sell the Egyptian leader a peace formula for the Middle East.

Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, editor of the semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahran, said in a signed editorial: "only a miracle will prevent a return to the battlefield, and I do not think we live in an age of miracles."

"Fighting Readiness"
Heikal, generally regarded as Nasser's spokesman, said the first task facing Egypt is "restoration of the army to its fighting readiness."

Hussein declared in Amman that Jordan "is determined to die" before it surrenders the Arab sector of Jerusalem to Israel.

"We are determined not to cede any part of our beloved land nor any stone of our sacred Jerusalem," Hussein said in a speech Thursday on the eve of the 15th anniversary of his becoming king.

He said Arabs had been protecting the Holy City for centuries and "we will not hesitate to sacrifice our lives in order to remain its protectors."

The Jerusalem Post reported Wednesday that Jordan's former development minister, Ismail Hejazi, had told one of its reporters Jordan plans to negotiate soon with Israel. Hejazi, known to be close to Hussein, said plans for such talks should be made public "within 10 days."

Old Firends

Tito planned to spend three days conferring with Nasser, an old personal friend and associate in the nonaligned movement. Informants said Tito has evolved a plan calling for Israeli withdrawal from territory wrested from the Arabs in the June war in return for guarantees by the big powers of the U.N. Security Council of Israel's prewar borders. But the Israelis have insisted they will not give up the Old City of Jerusalem and have given no indication they would consider any international guarantees sufficient to protect them.

Christian leaders in eastern Jordan announced they are sending protests to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant and Pope Paul VI against Israel's annexation of Old Jerusalem and alleged desecration of holy sites.

500 Reported Killed, Injured In South China

Supporters, Foes Of Mao Tse-tung Clash in Canton

HONG KONG. (AP) — Supporters and foes of Mao Tse-tung battled Wednesday night and Thursday in Canton, South China's largest city, and more than 500 persons were killed or seriously wounded, visitors from Red China reported today. The visitors said shots were heard throughout Kwangtung Province's capital. They said the guns were believed to have been seized from Chinese troops and police who seemed to be neutral during recent clashes. One visitor, who stayed in Canton for 14 days, said: "The high toll of casualties is a result of gun battles between the two groups. Clashes were frequent in Canton, but this was the first time that guns were used by both sides." Another visitor said Canton was "a city of terror" with most areas under military curfew.

"Ignore Curfew"
"Members of the rival groups apparently ignore the curfew," he said. "Thousands roam the curfew areas and troops apparently do not know how to handle the situation." The visitors said both factions seemed to be well organized and had their own trucks for transportation.

"Reinforcement was fast from both sides," one source said. "I saw a clash between a small number of Red Guards and workers in front of a restaurant. Within minutes reinforcement from both sides rushed to the scene by trucks and bicycles. 'No gun was used in this particular clash but police and troops cordoned the area. They did not interfere with fighting.'"

Interference With Free Choice

Thieu-Ky Campaign Tactics Rapped by Kennedy, Javits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said today there is "mounting and distressing evidence" South Vietnam's military regime is interfering with free choice in that nation's coming presidential election.

The New York Democrat said such interference would be a betrayal of the cause for which 12,000 Americans have died.

And his New York colleague,

Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits, said the South Vietnam elections should "mark the beginning of an end of our commitment there." He said a new, elected government should set to work to take responsibility for its own security, and the United States should look toward disengagement.

Presidential elections are scheduled in Vietnam Sept. 3.

Eleven tickets are entered, including a military pairing composed of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, chief of state, and Nguyen Cao Ky, now premier. Ky is running for vice president.

Kennedy charged that would-be candidates have been barred from the election because their views were deemed unacceptable; that opponents of the Ky regime have been jailed; that the presidential campaigners are being hampered by harassment; that the military government is moving to perpetuate its power whatever the election outcome.

"If free elections are not possible there," Javits said, "we have every right, once the elections take place, to begin to consider phasing out our commitment."

"We would no longer have a common purpose with the government of Vietnam," Kennedy said.

3 Americans Among
11 Killed in Denmark
ODENSE, Denmark (AP) — Three Americans from Ohio and eight Danes died Thursday in Denmark's worst railroad disaster in more than 50 years—the crash of one passenger train into the rear of another that had stopped on a bridge.

The American dead were identified as Joseph Nemesh, 57, and his wife Mary Jane, 50, of Cleveland, and Alexander Killbourne Young, 21, of Dayton, son of a Republican county committee chairman. Howard Young said he had heard nothing about this.

Trip Called Off
A 22-stop trip began last Sunday, but was called off in Quang Tri, the first stop, because a reception committee and government cars were not on hand to greet them. The candidates returned to Saigon and charged that Thieu and Ky, the military candidates for president and vice president, were trying to sabotage their campaign.

The civilians have not campaigned since then. Most of the civilian candidates were reported discussing pulling out of the Sept. 3 election and uniting behind the ticket of former Premier Tran Van Huong.

Informed sources said the mass pullout, if it happened, would be accompanied by a denunciation of Ky and Thieu, charging the government with police harassment of civilian candidates and sabotage of the election process.

Asked about the civilian boycott, Ky said: "It's their right" but he added that he thought their criticisms were unfair.

"All their criticisms are not accurate, not true," he said. "So I will never accept the letting necessary for their campaign." Ky told a reporter.

Seven of the 10 civilian candidates announced Thursday they would not participate in a tour of the provinces arranged by the government until Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu answered a letter they wrote Tuesday demanding assurance of "adequate security and transportation."

Asked about the civilian boycott, Ky said: "It's their right" but he added that he thought their criticisms were unfair.

"All their criticisms are not accurate, not true," he said. "So I will never accept the letting necessary for their campaign." Ky told a reporter.

Meteor Shower At Best Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The annual Perseid meteor shower—one of nature's yearly and rather spectacular free shows—is programmed to be at its best tonight or Saturday night after warming up in recent nights.

It will be visible nationwide, weather permitting. Astronomer Grady Hicks of the Naval Research Laboratory told a reporter as many as 50 "shooting stars" an hour should be visible in the northeastern sky, between midnight and 4 a.m. local time.

Some meteors should be visible even earlier, said Hicks who rates the Perseids—named for the hero of Greek mythology—as "one of the most spectacular, and the most reliable, of all meteor showers."

He suggests that you look towards the northeast "and up at an elevation angle of 45 to 60 degrees" for best viewing

Panel Asks More Negroes in Guard

Protests, Doubts
Voiced by State,
Army Officials

Olson Opposes Giving Preference to Anyone

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel's bid to boost the number of Negro National Guardsmen is drawing mixed reaction on Capitol Hill while generating doubts at the Pentagon and among Guard officials.

Sen. Fred R. Harris, a member of the President's Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, which recommended Thursday getting more Negroes into the Guard, said that would make the Guard more effective in dealing with ghetto riots.

But a Southern Republican protested the move as amounting to recruiting Guardsmen "from a purely racial standpoint."

Thurmond Criticism

"What you're saying," added Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina in an interview, "is that you're going to put more Negroes in the National Guard just to have Negroes."

The president of the National Guard Association questioned whether Guard units effectively could recruit more Negroes.

"How can you beat the bushes when you have a waiting list?" Maj. Gen. James F. Cantwell told a newsmen.

Johnson told Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to give the commission's recommendations immediate attention. The Pentagon reported later that McNamara had the panel's report and was studying it.

But an officer observed: "The secretary of defense doesn't have powers of conscription to make Negroes join the Guard."

He said the National Guard has had an active campaign the last three years to recruit Negroes and "they just don't want to belong."

Guard representatives have gone before Negro groups, civic organizations and colleges soliciting Negro enlistments without success, a spokesman said.

Justifying Evidence

"The evidence we heard justified an immediate recommendation for action," said Harris. "If there were a more realistic percentage of Negroes in Guard units called to handle riots in Negro areas, the Guard units would be more effective in doing so," he said.

Members of the advisory panel said they studied statistics showing Negro Guard membership ranged from zero in North Dakota and New Hampshire to a high of 29.07 in the District of Columbia—which alone had a Negro Guard membership percentage in double figures.

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Adjutant General Maj. Gen. Ralph Olson said Thursday the Wisconsin National Guard will not give preference to members of minority groups in filling guard vacancies, despite a recommendation by a presidential commission.

President Johnson's special commission on civil disorders had urged that more Negroes be enlisted in state National Guard units immediately.

"We are certainly not going to jump any group ahead of any other group, whether they are a minority group or not," Olson said. He said there has never been any discrimination involved in Guard enlistees.

Seven in Wisconsin

Figures revealed that there are seven Negroes among 9,839 Wisconsin Army Guardsmen and four Negroes among 1,754 Air National Guardsmen.

Maj. Gen. John A. Dunlap, commander of the famed 32nd Red Arrow Division, said the Guard tried to recruit more Negroes several years ago, but met with little success.

Dunlap said recruiters contacted Negro area high schools and other sources to gain more Negro recruits, but they "just don't seem to turn out."

Recruiting is difficult at this time, Olson said, because both the Army and Air Guard have been up to full strength the past two years.

Attends Briefing

Olson was in Washington to attend a briefing on a proposed reorganization of the Guard.

Most state commanders oppose the realignment, Olson said, because they feel Vietnam military commitments are more important than worrying about reorganization of the Guard.

Under the proposal, the 32nd would become a brigade of the 47th Minnesota division.

Olson said the Wisconsin Guard strength would remain at its present 9,800.

30 miles south of Hanoi, but smoke and dust prevented a damage assessment.

It was during this raid that pilots of two F4 Phantoms from the carrier Constellation spotted three North Vietnamese MIG21s and shot down two of them.

Air Force pilots reported sighting three MIG17s in another area, but the less advanced Communist interceptors made no effort to rise against the American fighter-bombers which continued on to their assigned targets.

The key Air Force targets in Thursday's raids were the Kep railyards, 38 miles northeast of Hanoi, and the Thai Nguyen railyards, 35 miles north of the capital. Both railroad yards have been attacked numerous times in the past.

F105 Thunderchief pilots based in Thailand hammered three areas of the Kep yards with 750-pound bombs and re-

Dallas Firm Wants Controlling Interest

Allis-Chalmers Mulls Purchase Offer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee's largest private employer, Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., announced late Thursday that a directors meeting will be held during the week-end to consider an offer from a Texas-based firm to buy controlling interest in Allis-Chalmers.

Ling - Temco - Vought, Inc. (LTV) made a $235 million tender offer Thursday to buy 4,750,000 shares—or about 51 percent — of Allis-Chalmers outstanding common stock.

LTV also offered to pay $150 a share for 143,000 shares of Allis-Chalmers 4.20 per cent convertible preferred.

Board Meeting Called

After a day-long session to discuss the offer, Allis-Chalmers officials said the firm "plans to arrange a board meeting over the weekend to consider the proposal."

The fast-growing Dallas-based firm set a deadline of Wednesday afternoon for adoption of a resolution by Allis-Chalmers that it will not oppose the offer or authorize any corporate action to enjoin or otherwise prohibit the offer by LTV.

LTV said if the resolution is not adopted "the tender offer will not be made."

Allis-Chalmers is based in West Allis, Wis., and is the

Appleton Plant

Allis-Chalmers operates a plant in Appleton for the manufacture of paper mill machinery. About 500 employees work in the firm's Appleton plant. Formerly Valley Iron Works, Inc., the operation was made an Allis-Chalmers subsidiary in 1959, became a full A-C plant in 1965, and was made a division one month ago.

The Wisconsin firm has 38,000 employees in 11 states and gross sales in 1966 were $857,215,136. Net operating profit was $54,066,579.

Allis-Chalmers was founded in 1913.

LTV just a week ago offered to pay some $500 million for control of the Great America Corp. of Dallas, which owns Braniff International and several insurance companies. And earlier this year, LTV bought control of Wilson & Co. of Chicago.

A-C Stock Climbs

Word of the tender offer to Allis-Chalmers caused a stir on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange Thursday until the closing bell. Allis-Chalmers common went for 35½, up from a 33 close on Wednesday. Its preferred was quoted at 117½, up 8½ from Wednesday.

Allis-Chalmers rose 3½ on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange Thursday, with 110,200 shares traded after the New York close. The Pacific Coast close was 36½.

5 State Universities Get $14 Million Loans

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved nearly $14 million in loans for dormitory construction at five state universities in Wisconsin. Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., said Thursday.

The loans include $3 million for three dormitories at Platteville, $3 million for two large dormitories to house 1,243 students at Eau Claire, $2.8 million for two dorms at Stout, $2.8 million for two at Superior, and $2.5 million for three buildings at Stevens Point.

Hearings Into 'Harassment' Set In Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Community Relations Social Development Commission—the top planning and administrative body for the antipoverty program in Milwaukee County—Thursday approved public hearings into charges of "police harassment and undue use of force."

Frank Stegert, executive director of the commission, said the date for the first hearing "will be set sometime before Sept. 24."

The commission also moved to set up a special committee to investigate the causes of possible riots. The committee would submit its findings to the commission after investigating the areas of housing, health, welfare, education, employment, youth and aging.

Basketball Star Plays Double Role

world was the basketball court. "I always thought of an individual even though I guess it isn't that way. I guess I gained that from athletics because if a guy is good, he's good."

Simmons played basketball 10 hours a day. "I didn't have time to think about things," he said. Racial tension was something he read about in magazines.

"I want to continue basketball too when I get out of college. This is my ultimate dream," said Simmons. "but this other thing is coming in and standing right alongside basketball. Before there was nothing that I could even put on the same plane as basketball. It was my entire existence. If somebody came by at three o'clock in the morning and wanted to go play, I'd go. But now if somebody comes by at three in the morning and wants to talk about black people, I'll get up and talk about black people. That's how important it is."

He doesn't believe that black awareness must necessarily lead to violence, but he doesn't dismiss violence. "You wonder if this is the only language the white man understands," he said. "I don't know. I don't have a definite answer."

"Stokely Carmichael is a follow-up to Dr. King. I feel that he is giving alternatives. He's saying, 'You do what Dr. King says now or you will have to deal with me later.'"

Simmons' involvement in the black cause has already alarmed some relatives and friends.

"They are very afraid," he said. "This is why blacks haven't made any progress, because for so long we have been very afraid. We have been afraid to do anything that is a little bit radical. I feel like the people who people calls fools are the ones that bring about change."

"When I talk like this to my mother, she is frightened because she is older. She tells you, 'Slow down. Tone down. Don't try to do it all at once. Be patient'... Eventually everybody is going to die. I don't want my mother to die without having a chance to see this change come about."

"Why should I be patient. I don't want to die myself. I want to see it. So why should I be patient and wait another 100 years."

Barbara Prideaux
Second Runnerup in Preview Pageant

An 18-year-old Weyauwega girl, Miss Barbara Prideaux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Prideaux, was the second runnerup in the beauty pageant Thursday night, which preceded the opening today of the 117th annual Wisconsin State Fair. Prideaux is editor of Weyauwega's weekly paper, "The Chronicle."

Miss Prideaux will act as a hostess during the 10-day event, with Connie Lee Platts, 20, a coed at Eau Claire State University, who was crowned "Fairness of the Fair."

First runnerup was Miss Sandra Andresen, 19, Burlington. 3,000 Watch
Some 3,000 persons watched the beauty pageant, which was part of the fair's preview night activities. Officials said 9,717 persons paid admissions for the preview night.

Administrator Vernon Wendland said he hoped that by the time the gates close Aug. 19, a million visitors will have paid their way in.

Today was press day at the fair, in honor of representatives of newspapers and the broadcast media.

Judging Continues
Judging in the senior or open division will continue throughout the week and contestants whose animals win blue ribbons in the junior group are eligible to compete in the open division.

At stake in the junior fair are more than $30,000 in premium awards.

Junior Fair supervisor Willis Freitag said junior fair participants will show 875 dairy cows, 225 beef cattle, 600 swine and 300 sheep, before their competition ends.

Asks for Cleanup

Outagamie Board Backs Fox River Water Source

Outagamie County board members gave their unanimous approval to a resolution calling for enforcement of federal and state antiwater pollution laws for the portion of the Fox River between Appleton and Lake Winnebago.

The resolution states cleanup of the river would provide "the citizens of Outagamie County with a raw water source as specified in the water criteria established in accordance with the Federal Pollution Control Act."

The action came at a time when the City of Appleton is fighting for federal aid for a pipeline to Lake Winnebago, and follows the line of thinking of a group of Appleton citizens who contend there is no need for a pipeline to Lake Winnebago, but rather the application of state and federal laws to halt contamination of the Fox River upstream from Appleton.

Leads Group
In fact, the resolution is an outgrowth of a resolution submitted to the county board in February by Appleton Supv. John Schreiter, who is a leader of the private citizen's group. Schreiter's resolution had been referred to the agriculture and conservation committee.

Copies of the resolution have been mailed to both of Wisconsin's Democratic U.S. Senators, William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson, Eighth District Rep. John W. Byrnes (R-Green Bay), and the regional director of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in Chicago.

Appleton officials Tuesday formally filed an objection with the Chicago HUD office in which they questioned the grounds on which a $1.5 million water grant was denied. The grant was to help finance the $4.5 million pipeline-plant expansion project.

Want Enforcement
The Outagamie County resolution, submitted by the agriculture and conservation committee, said "all legislation dealing with preservation of our natural resources should and must be effectively administered and implemented if they are to accomplish the task for which it was intended."

Stating the implementation of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, plus similar Wisconsin laws covered in Chapter 614, is "not only feasible or possible, but practical," the resolution states "citizens of Outagamie County, particularly those of Appleton, will be the beneficiaries."

Majority Satisfied
Clarence Stengel, CESA board member from Hilbert, said he believed 80 per cent of the persons in the district hadn't given consolidation any thought because they have no problems" but felt that the other 20 per cent would welcome the opportunity. He pointed out that the only other combination would be Brilliant, and expressed his personal opinion that the community was more oriented to Stockbridge and Chilton than to Brilliant.

A member of the Stockbridge board, speaking of Hilbert, said "the schools and communities have always got along well."

Stengel said Hilbert citizens who were interested in consolidation were thinking of a site for a new high school for the three communities "in the area of County Trunk E," eliminating travel through any community and convenient to the three districts. He said the advantages of sites in the country offset the water and sewage problems.

The first of three public hearings was scheduled by the committee for 8 p.m. Oct. 4 at Stockbridge High School, when Dr. Burton W. Kreitlow, research and development director of the University of Wisconsin, will be invited to attend. Oct. 2 was second choice, in the event Dr. Kreitlow could not attend Oct. 4.

Show Film

A film was shown on the events leading to the consolidation of Mazomanie and Black Earth School districts in Dane County, and the quality education being provided 360 students in a new Wisconsin Heights high school. While dissension has existed between the two communities "for a 100 years," the film showed how aggressive citizens in both rural communities had been successful in building a high school between the two communities. The bonding and site location had been combined in the referendum under a new law.

CESA Coordinator Erwin Stankowitz told the group consolidating three districts possibly could have more advantages here, than those of the two districts shown in the film.

Committee members asked the coordinator to try to obtain some of the research material put together by the Wisconsin Heights committees so they would be better informed for the public hearings. They also asked that the film be shown at the hearings.

CESA Invites Hilbert to Cooperate in School Study

Fall Meeting With Stockbridge,
Chilton Not Interpreted as Involvement in Consolidation

CHILTON — Hilbert Board of Education will be invited to an educational improvement study meeting with Stockbridge and Chilton at 8 p.m. Sept. 14.

Cooperative Educational Service Agency (CESA) 10 voted the invitation Thursday night during a progress report of consolidation of Stockbridge and Chilton districts.

The reorganization committee learned Thursday Hilbert had agreed to cooperate in three public meetings, one in each district. However, no representative from the Hilbert board was present because CESA had indicated at the July 14 meeting, when Stockbridge committed its district to definite consolidation plans in six months, that Hilbert be left out, and only Stockbridge and Chilton boards attend the meeting.

Chilton Supt. A. W. Gordon told the committee Stockbridge's supervising principal, Paul Dobias, and himself had met on two occasions and he felt "the problems of transportation could be solved easily." A map was presented, which showed all Stockbridge boundaries having access to main highways. Chilton currently is operating 15 buses and Stockbridge, four, on double runs.

Show Figures

Enrollments of the two high schools showed Chilton with 590 students and Stockbridge, 140. Figures given for kindergarten through eighth grade were Chilton, 1,265, and Stockbridge, 423. Complete figures for Chilton's second grade were not available. All totals in the elementary departments in both districts included children in parochial schools.

Projected high school enrollment for next year was set at 759 by the two administrators.

Equalized valuation figures presented were Chilton, $37,700,000 and Stockbridge, $8,900,000 for a combined $46,600,000. Debt in the Chilton district is $528,000 and in Stockbridge, $229,000. Comparative curricula also were presented.

CESA committee members felt that for the benefit of long-range planning, similar information should be presented by Hilbert, although it was emphasized the invitation to have them participate in the joint meeting should not be interpreted as "trying to involve them in consolidation." They pointed out that including them in planning now was advantageous to "having them pushed into it later."

Fire Destroys Trailer House Near Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — A trailer house on River Road, off County Trunk C, about 10 miles northeast of here, was destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon.

The volunteer rural fire department was called at 4:40 p.m. but was unable to save the trailer or its contents. No estimate of the amount of loss was available.

Firemen reported they thought the fire was probably started by some children. No one was in the trailer at the time.

Chamber of Commerce Plans New London School Bus Rodeo

Regular Drivers to be Tested
On Written, Mechanical Skills

NEW LONDON—Plans for a school bus rodeo were made at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Thursday.

The event has been scheduled for Oct. 7 and Emil Gehrke was designated general chairman. Gehrke will work with the local public school and the chamber in forming plans for the event.

School districts, private fleet owners and private bus operators which transport school children will be invited to enter the rodeo — which will be patterned after the national truck drivers over-the-road rodeo.

Supt. H. James Ramsdell told the chamber that the rodeo would emphasize the need for safety in transporting children. The event would consist of a written test, driving (over-the-road) test and a skill test.

A simulated bus route would be plotted for the driving test.

The skill test would test the driver's ability to maneuver his bus through an obstacle course. Points would be given on the written, driver's road test and skill test.

Men's and Women's Classes
Ramsdell said a division into men's and women's classes could be made and classes according to the passenger size of busses was possible.

Details of the program will be worked out within the next few weeks.

Arnold Kohl and Norman Hanson were named co-chairmen of the farm institute program set for the senior high school Jan. 15. Committees for the event will be named before the Sept. 13 chamber meeting.

The chamber voted to discontinue its breakfast for New London School District teachers.

Plans for participating in the second annual "Wonderful Wisconsin Week", Sept. 17-23 were made. Heritage Day (Sept. 17) and Hospitality Day (Sept. 23) will be handled by the executive officers.

Arnold Kohl was named chairman of the Education and Youth Day, Sept. 18, program; Mike Coyle, chairman of Government Day, Sept. 19, and Merlin Hintz and Don Polzin, Wisconsin at Work Days, Sept. 20-22.

On hospitality day, brochures and "We Like It Here" pins will be distributed by high school girls to persons passing through the city on U. S. 45

Charred Remains of a trailer house were all that was left following a fire Thursday afternoon. The unit was located on River Road, off County Trunk C, about 10 miles northeast of Clintonville. Owner of the trailer was thought to be a Racine resident. (Lab Photo)

Knowles Speaks at Ceremonies CAP Services Lauded At Ground-Breaking

At ground-breaking ceremonies yesterday for the new Civil Air Patrol training center, Gov. Warren P. Knowles said, "The Civil Air Patrol does invaluable service to the state of Wisconsin through its search and rescue program, its youth training program, and its aviation interest-building efforts."

"This construction will mark the culmination of several years of planning and will provide a modern and efficient training center to serve the entire Fox River Valley," the Governor added. "Through the dedicated service of the CAP, new interest and enthusiasm in aviation will be generated in this important area of Wisconsin."

Knowles noted that the CAP is raising its own funds for the project. "The $11,000 which you have raised thus far is sound evidence that the people of the Fox River Valley area are in full support of the admirable objectives of the Civil Air Patrol," the Governor said. "Equally as important," he added, "is the generous support you have received from state Senator Lorge and from the Outagamie County Board."

Knowles called the new construction "one more example of a vibrant Wisconsin economy" and indicated that he expects more growth of the industrial base of the Valley. "The Fox River Valley holds some of the state's greatest potential for continuing growth, expansion, and prosperity," the Governor concluded.

Hilbert Okays Contract For Garbage Pickup

Will Hire Arthur Boettcher Instead of Purchasing, Maintaining Own Equipment

HILBERT — Arthur Boettcher, will be contracted by the village to collect garbage, it was voted Tuesday by the village board.

Boettcher, a contract garbage collector, will be hired on a one-month trial basis at $10 an hour. He will furnish a truck and driver, and be assisted by two village employees. It is expected to take four hours weekly to complete the work. Boettcher previously told the board collections could be made on Friday, as usual.

Village officials chose this method of collection in preference to purchasing its own equipment, paying interest and maintaining it.

Roehrig Insurance Agency was awarded the insurance contract for additional coverage for the volunteer firemen for a $278 a year. The new policy will pay $50 a week compensation in addition to workmen's compensation.

Christmas Lighting
Possibility of providing financial assistance towards new Christmas lighting for the village was discussed, following the appointment of a committee by the Hilbert Advancement Association to investigate. Board members voted 4 to 2 against the use of village funds for purchase of the improvement, but okayed installation of the Yule decor by village employees and will assume maintenance of it.

Trustee Clarence Stengel, chairman of the street committee, reported on the current improvements being carried out in the village. He said Driveway's Inc., Menasha, will start the seal-coating work Monday.

It was decided to include the portion of Cedar Street between Seventh and Eighth streets in the sealcoating project and to bring Third Street up to grade.

Yellow parking lanes will be marked near St. Peter Lutheran Church.

Increased Valuation
In other business, Mrs. Arthur Pruess, clerk, reported an increase of $291,935 in valuation, according to the board of review.

The Poor Committee was ordered to check into a relief claim for $180 with the village attorney, since the claimant was working full-time.

Members of the Improvement Committee and Ernest Pitzen will examine the roof of the village garage to determine if it should be recoated, and the purchasing committee will report costs for a new truck and tank for the water department at the next meeting.

Village president Orville Manz cautioned all trustees to have full committee representation before making any decisions in village matters.

Study Planned Of Bear Creek School District

Board of Education To Seek Solution to Transfer Petitions

NEW LONDON — The Bear Creek Board of Education is to review its status as an independent district, and then present its findings to the Cooperative Educational Service Agency No. 8 (CESA) school reorganization committee Aug. 24.

The action came after a hearing by the CESA 8 committee on a petition to transfer 223 acres from the Bear Creek district to New London.

A decision on the petition was held over until Aug. 24 to give the Bear Creek board a chance to work out a solution to the continuing problem of district residents petitioning to be attached to other school districts.

Bear Creek board members presented the request to the CESA committee after a short recess at a joint meeting of the New London and Bear Creek boards of education and the committee.

Roger Paul, route 2, the landowner petitioning for the transfer, was one of several farmers in the Town of Deer Creek and Town of Maple Creek area petitioning for attachment to the New London district a year ago.

While CESA ruled in favor of the petitioners last year, New London district voters overturned the decision in a referendum.

Pulp League to Get $483,000 Grant

Federal Money for Research In Treating Paper Mill Waste

The Pulp Manufacturers Research League, Inc., paper mill research group headquartered in Appleton, will receive a $483,000 research and development grant from the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration.

The grant is for research demonstrations of the reverse osmosis process in the treatment of dilute pulp wastes. Total cost is estimated at $690,500 with 70 per cent coming from government funds.

Officials at the League today said word of the grant had been received from Rep. John Byrnes (R-Green Bay) and indirectly from Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) (News stories Wednesday from the office of Sen. Nelson indicated the grant was for $483,000.) Official word confirmed the grant and details of the program have not been received but are expected, along with details of the program, within the next 10 days at the League headquarters, located near the Institute of Paper Chemistry.

Underway For 2 Years

League officials said the reverse osmosis process has been under development for saline water conversion in many laboratories and the League studies have been directed to adapting the process to treatment of pulp and paper industry waste. The process has been under laboratory and pilot scale development by the League in Appleton and at member mills for the past two years with the cooperation of a number of equipment firms active in the field of membrane processing.

Boy Scouts Plan Trip to Expo '67

Thirty Boy Scouts from Troop 1, St. Joseph Catholic Church, will leave Sunday for a two-week tour which will include Expo '67 at Montreal.

The boys worked for eight months to earn the money for the trip, by selling books and first aid kits. They also had a car wash, a paper drive and a dance.

Charles Schmitt, scout leader, and Richard Novitzke, assistant leader, will be in charge of the trip.

The group will rent a bus for the trip and enroute, will visit SAC Air Force Base, Gatineau Park, and Ottawa. On the way back they will visit Wellington Bay, Niagara Falls, Port Erie and Detroit.

Recently Schmitt and five boys from the troop completed the 50-mile hike for a national scout award.

Kaukauna Firemen Put Out Burning Oil, Plank

KAUKAUNA — Firemen were called to the 400 block of Draper Street about 7:30 p.m. Thursday when burning oil from an overturned flare ignited a plank. Firemen thought that children playing in the area had tipped over the flare.

ing the grant and details of the program have not been received but are expected, along with details of the program, within the next 10 days at the League headquarters, located near the Institute of Paper Chemistry.

League officials said the reverse osmosis process has been under development for saline water conversion in many laboratories and the League studies have been directed to adapting the process to treatment of pulp and paper industry waste. The process has been under laboratory and pilot scale development by the League in Appleton and at member mills for the past two years with the cooperation of a number of equipment firms active in the field of membrane processing.

Although technical feasibility seems assured, the process still is very new and has yet to be proven workable and practical on large commercial scale in-mill trials, League officials said. Engineers of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration have been closely observing and following League development study. The League program would in the usual course of engineering and research development be expected to reach commercial stage valuation in 3 to 5 years. The demonstration grant may make possible the speeding up the next stages of large scale engineering studies to put the process to work sooner.

Published in August

The league studies have been described in a technical paper to be published in the August issue of "TAPPI" which will be out in the next two weeks.

In Washington Byrnes commented, "We should all be pleased with the news . . . of a grant of $483,000 to the Pulp Manufacturers Research League in Appleton — an institution long associated with research in the field of paper mill waste treatment."

Byrnes added that the water pollution control project had great significance because it deals with a problem that affects the lives of all Wisconsin residents.

Technical Institute Targeted for 1971

Site Selection Will Depend On Student Population, Roads

MENASHA — The target date for opening the area technical institute to serve Winnebago, Outagamie, Calumet and Waupaca counties is the fall of 1971, the new district director told Menasha Rotary Wednesday.

William Sirek, director of the five-week-old Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12 (VTE-12), said it would take three years to develop and build the new post-high school institute.

No decisions have been made on where the institute will be placed, he said. He said he has repeatedly been asked that question and just answers, "I don't know, and the board doesn't know either."

To select a site at this point would be just "guesswork," he added.

When the site selection is made, Sirek said, it will revolve around four considerations: the center of population, where the high school graduates are coming from, the center of transportation and the center of the new district's valuation.

Sirek said when a new assistant director is hired, one of his first jobs will be to do research on the site question. He expressed the hope that the research will point to a logical decision and avoid a site selection controversy.

Present estimates are for some 1,500 to 2,000 fulltime students at the new institute within four or five years. It will offer broadened programs in technical education.

He said the broadened program is necessary because technology advances so fast that one-half of the present high school students will end up in jobs that don't even exist today.

In addition, he said, retraining is constantly necessary because the average worker will change jobs twice in a lifetime as old jobs disappear.

Sirek maintained that the new statewide system of vocational education will have the effect of reducing costs per student hour, because the class sizes will be increased and the facilities will be used more widely.

He predicted that the new district will be able to operate on "way below the 2 mills maximum taxation allowed by law," partly because District 12 has the third largest valuation of the 18 districts in the state. District 2 has approximately $2 billion in equalized valuation, he said.

Since the parts of the four county area previously without vocational programs will now be taxed for the first time, the taxes levied on areas like Neenah, Menasha and Appleton, which have had local vocational education, could decrease, at least temporarily, he said.

None of the programs for this school year have been changed by the new area board, Sirek said, but he explained that program changes could start next year.

After a survey of the programs offered in the existing six vocational schools, the board may consolidate some and broaden others. Areas he cited were Appleton, Kaukauna, Menasha and Oshkosh.

Mrs. John McInnes, 1213 S. Stead Drive, Town of Menasha, was agriculture since this is a strong farm district, papermaking, foundry technology, the medical assistant's field, and the critical shortage in the nursing profession.

Sirek is presently looking for office space centrally located in the area and has considered so it could be removed.

Stockbridge Rule Legally Frowns on 'Horsing Around'

STOCKBRIDGE — The village board has emphatically made it clear there will be "no horsing around" in the village.

Specifically, it has passed a resolution forbidding the keeping of domestic animals, except cats and properly licensed dogs, within the village limits.

Violation of the resolution carries a minimum fine of $25 and maximum of $100.

Exempt are animals being fed or retained on farms. A farm is defined as property from which the resident derives his livelihood.

Village officials also reviewed the dog ordinance, which states that unlicensed animals can be destroyed. The board had been informed there are 12 untagged dogs in the village.

The building will be built on a two-acre parcel of land owned by the society about 1½ miles south of Chilton. An old log cabin barn is already on the property.

Urban Sprawl Predicted by Year 2000

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP)—By the year 2000, a sociologist says, the Eastern Seaboard, the southern shore of the Great Lakes and the West Coast will be sprawling "strip cities." Dr. H. Theodore Groat, a sociologist, also said in a research project that population trends show that 5 of every 6 Americans will live in these urban chains by 2000—only 33 years from now.

Despite high standards of living, undreamed of comforts and a longer life span, life in America won't all be milk and honey, he says.

Besides population and transportation problems—he estimates there will be 340 million Americans by the turn of the century—many uncertainties exist.

He said such questions as what will happen to privacy, whether man will be able to escape noise, or how many will react to new and more intense psychological pressures, remain to be answered.

$20 Million Tax Refund Asked for American Motors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wisconsin's two senators have introduced a bill that would result in an immediate $20 million tax refund for financially troubled American Motors Corp.

Senators William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson, both Democrats, offered the bill Wednesday as a means to help the Wisconsin-based firm get through its current dollar crisis. Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., introduced a companion bill in the House.

The measure would allow the firm to apply losses from current operations to obtain an immediate refund.

The senators said the bill would not cost taxpayers anything because AMC could claim the same credit two years from now even if the bill was not passed and the firm operated at a profit.

Panel Asks More Negroes in Guard

Protests, Doubts
Voiced by State,

Olson Opposes Giving Preference to Anyone

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel's bid to boost the number of Negro National Guardsmen is drawing mixed reaction on Capitol Hill while generating doubts at the Pentagon and among Guard officials.

Sen. Fred R. Harris, a member of the President's Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, which recommended Thursday getting more Negroes into the Guard, said that would make the Guard more effective in dealing with ghetto riots.

But a Southern Republican protested the move as amounting to recruiting Guardsmen "from a purely racial standpoint."

Thurmond Criticism

"What you're saying," added Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina in an interview, "is that you're going to put more Negroes in the National Guard just to have Negroes."

The president of the National Guard Association questioned whether Guard units effectively could recruit more Negroes.

"How can you beat the bushes when you have a waiting list?" Maj. Gen. James F. Cantwell told a newsmen.

Johnson told Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to give the commission's recommendations immediate attention. The Pentagon reported later that McNamara had the panel's report and was studying it.

But an officer observed: "The secretary of defense doesn't have powers of conscription to make Negroes join the Guard." He said the National Guard has had an active campaign the last three years to recruit Negroes and "they just don't want to belong." Guard representatives have gone before Negro groups, civic organizations and colleges soliciting Negro enlistments without success, a spokesman said.

Justifying Evidence

"The evidence we heard justified an immediate recommendation for action," said Harris. "If there were a more realistic percentage of Negroes in Guard units called to handle riots in Negro areas, the Guard units would be more effective in doing so," he said.

Members of the advisory panel said they studied statistics showing Negro Guard membership ranged from zero in North Dakota and New Hampshire to a high of 29.07 in the District of Columbia—which alone had a Negro Guard membership percentage in double figures.

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Adjutant General Maj. Gen. Ralph Olson said Thursday the Wisconsin National Guard will not give preference to members of minority groups in filling guard vacancies, despite a recommendation by a presidential commission.

President Johnson's special commission on civil disorders had urged that more Negroes be enlisted in state National Guard units immediately.

"We are certainly not going to jump any group ahead of any other group, whether they are a minority group or not," Olson said. He said there has never been any discrimination involved in Guard enlistees.

Seven in Wisconsin

Figures revealed that there are seven Negroes among 9,839 Wisconsin Army Guardsmen and four Negroes among 1,754 Air National Guardsmen.

Maj. Gen. John A. Dunlap, commander of the famed 32nd Red Arrow Division, said the Guard tried to recruit more Negroes several years ago, but met with little success.

Dunlap said recruiters contacted Negro area high schools and other sources to gain more Negro recruits, but they "just don't seem to turn out."

Recruiting is difficult at this time, Olson said, because both the Army and Air Guard have been up to full strength the past two years.

Attends Briefing

Olson was in Washington to attend a briefing on a proposed reorganization of the Guard.

Most state commanders oppose the realignment, Olson said, because they feel Vietnam military commitments are more important than worrying about reorganization of the Guard.

Under the proposal, the 32nd would become a brigade of the 47th Minnesota division.

Olson said the Wisconsin Guard strength would remain at its present 9,800.

Three Milwaukee Boys brought flowers to a Milwaukee patrolman, John Carter, but he could not see them from his hospital bed. Carter was wounded during recent racial disturbances and bandages covered his eyes. The youngsters raised money for the flowers at a backyard carnival. (AP Wirephoto)

Dallas Firm Wants Controlling Interest

Allis-Chalmers Mulls Purchase Offer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee's largest private employer, Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., announced late Thursday that a directors meeting will be held during the week-end to consider an offer from a Texas-based firm to buy controlling interest in Allis-Chalmers.

Ling - Temco - Vought, Inc. (LTV) made a $235 million tender offer Thursday to buy 4,750,000 shares—or about 51 percent — of Allis-Chalmers outstanding common stock.

LTV also offered to pay $150 a share for 143,000 shares of Allis-Chalmers 4.20 per cent convertible preferred.

Board Meeting Called

After a day-long session to discuss the offer, Allis-Chalmers officials said the firm "plans to arrange a board meeting over the weekend to consider the proposal."

The fast-growing Dallas-based firm set a deadline of Wednesday afternoon for adoption of a resolution by Allis-Chalmers that it will not oppose the offer or authorize any corporate action to enjoin or otherwise prohibit the offer by LTV.

LTV said if the resolution is not adopted "the tender offer will not be made."

Allis-Chalmers is based in West Allis, Wis., and is the

Appleton Plant

Allis-Chalmers operates a plant in Appleton for the manufacture of paper mill machinery. About 500 employees work in the firm's Appleton plant. Formerly Valley Iron Works, Inc., the operation was made an Allis-Chalmers subsidiary in 1959, became a full A-C plant in 1965, and was made a division one month ago.

The Wisconsin firm has 38,000 employees in 11 states and gross sales in 1966 were $857,215,136. Net operating profit was $54,066,579.

Allis-Chalmers was founded in 1913. LTV just a week ago offered to pay some $500 million for control of the Great America Corp. of Dallas, which owns Braniff International and several insurance companies. And earlier this year, LTV bought control of Wilson & Co. of Chicago.

A-C Stock Climbs

Word of the tender offer to Allis-Chalmers caused a stir on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange Thursday until the closing bell. Allis-Chalmers common went for 35½, up from 33 close on Wednesday. Its preferred was quoted at 117½, up 8½ from Wednesday.

Allis-Chalmers rose 3½ on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange Thursday, with 110,200 shares traded after the New York close. The Pacific Coast close was 36½.

Hearings Into 'Harassment' Set In Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Community Relations Social Development Commission—the top planning and administrative body for the antipoverty program in Milwaukee County—Thursday approved public hearings into charges of "police harassment and undue use of force."

Frank Stegert, executive director of the commission, said the date for the first hearing will be set sometime before Sept. 24.

The commission also moved to set up a special committee to investigate the causes of possible riots. The committee would submit its findings to the commission after investigating the areas of housing, health, welfare, education, employment, youth and aging.

world was the basketball court. "I always thought of an individual even though I guess it isn't that way. I guess I gained that from athletics because if a guy is good, he's good."

Simmons played basketball 10 hours a day. "I didn't have time to think about things," he said. Racial tension was something he read about in magazines.

"I want to continue basketball too when I get out of college. This is my ultimate dream," said Simmons, "but this other thing is coming in and standing right alongside basketball. Before there was nothing that I could even put on the same plane as basketball. It was my entire existence. If somebody came by at three o'clock in the morning and wanted to go play, I'd go. But now if somebody comes by at three in the morning and wants to talk about black people, I'll get up and talk about black people. That's how important it is."

He doesn't believe that black awareness must necessarily lead to violence, but he doesn't dismiss violence. "You wonder if this is the only language the white man understands," he said. "I don't know, I don't have a definite answer."

"Stokely Carmichael is a follow-up to Dr. King. I feel that he is giving alternatives. He's saying, 'You do what Dr. King says now or you will have to deal with me later.'"

Simmons' involvement in the black cause has already alarmed some relatives and friends.

"They are very afraid," he said. "This is why blacks haven't made any progress, because for so long we have been very afraid. We have been afraid to do anything that is a little bit radical. I feel like the people who people calls fools are the ones that bring about change."

"When I talk like this to my mother, she is frightened because she is older. She tells you, 'Slow down. Tone down. Don't try to do it all at once. Be patient'. Eventually everybody is going to die. I don't want my mother to die without having a chance to see this change come about."

"Why should I be patient. I don't want to die myself. I want to see it. So why should I be patient and wait another 100 years?"

to sign away any right to develop its own nuclear capability.

Asked about the chances of acceptance of the forthcoming draft by the West German government, Foster went into the matter of previous discussions with allies and the green light.

Foster told reporters under questioning he thought there was very little chance that the two other nuclear powers, Red China and France, would go along with the projected treaty draft. But he said he doubted that they would share their nuclear weapons with other countries.

In the disarmament commission, the only nations not familiar with the full course of the Soviet-U.S. negotiations, Foster said, are eight nonaligned countries representing all such countries in the world.

As the next possible step beyond a nonproliferation treaty, Foster foresaw a comprehensive ban on nuclear testing, which the United States has been pushing.

On the matter of the blank provision on inspection and assurances, Foster said that he hopes and believes this can be filled in before a treaty goes to the U.N. General Assembly. It was regarded as too complicated to include in the upcoming draft at this time, he said.

But there will be continued discussions on it, he said.

Just the Facts, Please, Mam

The Senate Judiciary Committee was informed recently by a representative of the Wisconsin League of Women Voters that Wisconsin is one of the safest states in which to commit a murder and get away with it.

The woman indicated that the league feels a solution to the problem would be abolition of the county coroner's office and replacement of it with a medical examiner, as is the case in Milwaukee County. She was speaking to the Senate committee in behalf of a bill that would allow counties to decide if they wanted a coroner or a medical examiner.

We find it hard to believe the league representative was justified in her concern over murders going undetected. There apparently was no evidence presented as to how the League of Women Voters became convinced Wisconsin has an "unsolved murder problem." We are curious as to how they arrived at that conclusion. We further find it difficult to understand how a medical examiner or doctor would solve the alleged problem.

Possibly the league is under the impression that the coroner conducts death investigations singlehandedly. This could not be further from the truth. In almost all cases where it appears death could be due to other than normal causes, specially-trained police, pathologists, the district attorney's office, or the state crime laboratory would play major roles in the investigation.

And, it should be noted that in most cases where death appears to be of questionable nature, the doctor would have the first opportunity to observe and detect it, and it is his duty to notify authorities — a duty some doctors shirk. There have been instances in Outagamie County where doctors have "written off" as heart attacks deaths that have turned out to be accidental.

Also, we cannot help but wonder why any doctor worth his salt would want to chase around the county at all hours of the day or night for $16 per diem — an amount that a general practitioner charges for three office calls—which, incidentally, do not occur at 2 or 3 a.m. as do the natural, unnatural, or violent deaths which the coroner is called on to investigate.

We would be curious to know more about the bases on which the League of Women Voters makes its strong bid for an end to the county coroner system. But we would like to see more than words — we would like to see facts and figures.

Let's be Honest About the Tax Increase

There isn't much doubt that the federal government needs more money — huge bundles of it as far as that is concerned — but the nation's taxpayers can't be blamed for their lack of enthusiasm over President Johnson's opinion that they can well afford to contribute more of their income to his administration.

Administration witnesses will testify next week that the federal budget deficit could mount as high as $29 billions this fiscal year if Congress doesn't enact the 10 per cent income surtax which LBJ has requested. We just hope they are completely honest in their presentations to the House Ways and Means Committee.

They should tell the committee for instance that they have consistently underestimated the terrible costs of the Vietnam War as part of the administration's policy of keeping the public in the dark about the extent of that war effort. They will probably admit that as of now the war is costing $4 billion more this year than they figured in January, but critics say this too is an understatement.

They should also tell the committee that while President Johnson constantly talks about holding down domestic spending he has really taken no effective steps to do so, and that he continually refuses to put priorities on domestic spending projects to indicate which ones might be postponed.

They probably will testify that a tax increase is necessary to head off a threat of inflation. But if they are really honest about it they will admit that the greatest inflationary pressure on our economy today is the huge over-all government spending program and the catapulting national debt. A tax increase will be only a minor counter-inflationary influence compared to that pressure.

Whether Congress gives the President everything he wants in a tax increase or not, this year's federal deficit will exceed any since the monumental ones of World War II. We are in the third most expensive war of our history, but President Johnson consistently refuses to order the belt-tightening which in the past has always accompanied an all-out war effort.

There will undoubtedly be widespread criticism of the tax increase request in Congress, and there will be many suggestions that expense cutting should accompany any such step. But in the end Congress will have to give LBJ another slice of our money. The plain fact is that he needs it very badly.

The Local Affairs Agency

The selection by Gov. Knowles of an experienced city government executive as the first chief of the State Department of Local Affairs and Development provides promise of an effective beginning for an important new state government service.

City Manager Douglas Weiford is not only a seasoned specialist in the problems of local government administration, as shown by his work as the chief executive of the city of Eau Claire and as a strong voice in the League of Wisconsin Municipalities and the National League of Cities. He has also had some useful preparatory exposure to state government administration and policy-making as a productive and articulate member of the board of directors of the State Department of Resource Development during the last year.

The new department set up in the Kellett Law combines a number of existing bureaus, including civil defense, the state planning program, and the industrial promotion program formerly attached to the state executive department. These will presumably continue in their existing patterns and under their enabling laws without substantial change, except as a more functional grouping of them within the new department may make them more efficient.

The most meaningful work of the new department will be as advisor and helper to the local governments of Wisconsin, large and small, which are encountering ever more complex problems in dealing with the changes of modern life.

It needs emphasis that the nature and range of such help for localities has not yet been completely detailed by the legislature. A complementary bill remains before the lawmakers, and will probably be acted upon in their fall session. But the outline is now available, and the basic decision has been made that the state can be a helpful partner of cities and counties, probably more particularly in the urbanized districts of the state than in the others.

We are aware that the creation of this new service, supported as it was by many municipal leaders, was viewed with some reservations by others. Often promises of federal help have turned into unwelcome intervention in local government and imposition of programs and policies that local officials would not willingly have chosen on their own initiative. Yet as the League of Wisconsin Municipalities has said, Wisconsin traditions of local self-rule are likely to be undisturbed, and the selection of a man such as Douglas Weiford appears to be a kind of insurance to that end. Localities are creatures of the state, as the constitutional lawyers say. But the state dare not take on a paternalistic attitude. What is wanted is a more effective partnership of state and locality, in a time of vaulting governmental problems at the grass roots level.

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Aug. 31, 1867.

Isn't it strange to hear so much said about taking care of or developing the Second Ward Water Power, or making needed public improvements bend to those purposes, when the Aldermanic owner of most of that Power does nothing officially or individually to benefit it?

Neither by aiding in the repair of the existing dam, the lengthening of the race, the filling in of Water Street, nor the building of a Stone Dam across the river.

It is a swinish characteristic to swill down all the hog can hold and then root the trough over even when half full, but we cannot appreciate the human logic which will squat down and neither eat nor allow others to do so if it's in their power to prevent it!

New Political Thesis Is That War in Vietnam Caused American Riots

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

There is a shift in the making — a shift in public opinion on the question of Vietnam, and in a strange way it relates to the Negro problem, or rather is being made to relate to the Negro problem. There are signs everywhere, and from very important people.

Buckley

The most significant, in my judgment, is the recent declaration of Bishop Fulton J.

Sheen that we should unilaterally pull out of Vietnam. Bishop Sheen is neither senile nor loose-minded. His anti-Communism is unalloyed, and his knowledge of the strategic realities is unsentimental. I put off for another day an analysis of the Bishop's reasoning — for the present purposes it is significant to note merely that he has taken that position, and that he is an enormously influential priest. Moreover, a priest who is grimly engaged at the moment as Bishop of Rochester, in attempting a substantive reconciliation between the Negro and white people in that tense city. Notwithstanding his great urbanity and learning, he is at heart an evangelist — and he is asking for nothing less than reconciliation, between white and Negro; but also between white and yellow.

SEARCH FOR NEXUS

nexus. Is there one between the Negro problem and the Vietnam war? The effort is being made to find one, and we can trust to the ingenuity of the politician to discover one.

During the weekend, Senator Robert Kennedy went on a paralogistic spree. The occasion was a Democratic fundraising dinner in San Francisco, the immediate purpose of which was to show the great big biceps of Speaker Jesse Unruh, who was recently worsted at the O.K. Corral by the deft gunmanship of Ronald Reagan. Senator Kennedy got his usual running ovation. But it was interrupted by a special ovation when he called on the American people to note the "monstrous disproportion of anyone willing to spend billions for the freedom of others while denying it to our own people." That is one of those political effusions which are the highest testimony to the moral and intellectual emptiness of the political idiom.

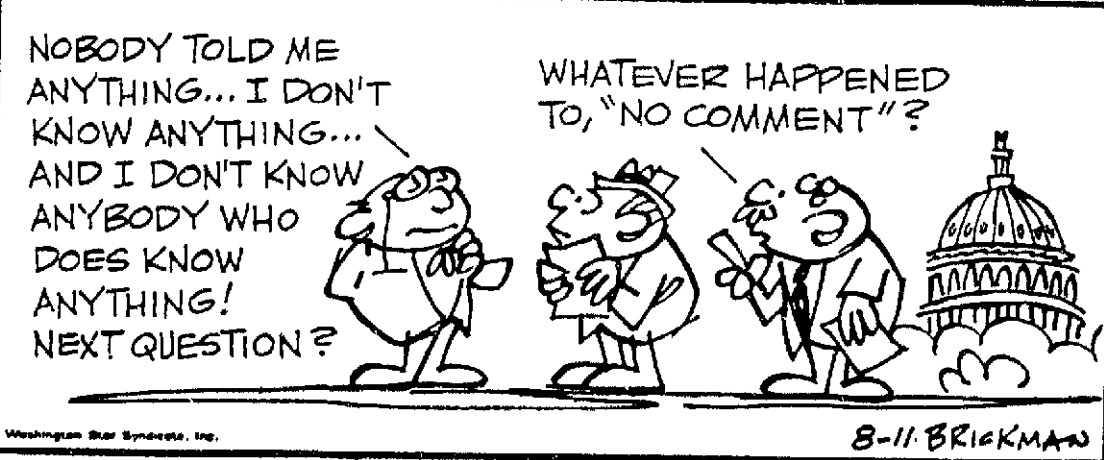

The costliest riot in United States history took place a few weeks ago in Detroit, whose Democratic mayor, a longtime hero of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, can hardly be said to have conspired against the freedom of the Negro people. But the Senator was just warming up: "We cannot allow involvement in the name of independence and democracy in Vietnam to interfere with democracy for our own people." Another burst of applause, more testimony to non-thought. Who is asking that democracy for the Negroes be put off until the end of the Vietnam war? Lyndon Johnson? Ronald Reagan? Abigail Van Buren?

DISCREDIT DEMOCRACY
And then the old blackmail: "We must reject the counsel of those willing to pass laws against violence while refusing to eliminate rats." It's sentences like that one that discredit the democratic process. Sentences like that one plus the applause they receive.

But the outline emerges. Somehow, our commitment in Vietnam is the cause of the riots in the United States. Get it? Remember it: the one-two will be very prominent in the rhetoric to come. There is to begin with the sick-at-heartness over the Vietnam war of which Bishop Sheen's manifesto is the expression. Then there is the dazed American attitude towards the riots... why? why? why? There are politicians around who think they can supply a viable answer.

Conservationists Take Over Natural Resource Board in Quick Coup

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — One of the members of the Capitol press corps who watched with fascination the swift takeover of the new Department of Natural Resources by the Conservation Department last week aptly described it as a coup.

Wyngaard

It was precisely that — quick, determined, planned in advance, and executed with a finality that surprised everybody except those privy to the scheduled arrangements. No doubt there will be some window-dressing to follow in the form of a gesture toward searching out other eligible candidates for the appointment as permanent secretary and chief administrator of the merged department.

But it is perfectly evident that Lester P. Voigt, the Conservation Department director, is the man that the majority of the members of the new board want to name as chief of the consolidated natural resources agency. His service as "acting secretary" gives him a commanding lead in the competition even if that is later permitted to suit the political amenities.

It is extremely doubtful that under the circumstances any other plausible contenders, such as Freeman Holmer of the sister Department of Resource Development, will bother to apply formally. Proud public officials normally don't do so when rejection is inevitable.

CONSIDERATION IMPLIED

On the basis of the representations that were made to him when Holmer was persuaded to leave a respectable and dank office in the state of Oregon a year ago, he had a right to assume that he would be considered for the command of the merged department here. The casualness of his rejection may very well lead him to consider employment elsewhere, as some of the best informed of his administrative colleagues see it. There have been published suggestions that Gov. Knowles wanted Holmer. They are untrue. In fact it can now be reported that Knowles had private talks with the conservation commissioners he chose for the majority of seats on the new united agency board, and asked them to keep open minds on the question of the secretarial appointment. They might have interpreted that as opposition to Voigt or as an expression of a preference for Holmer. But the fact is that what Knowles was suggesting, as discreetly as he could, that the recruitment should be careful, and that the appointment of a new man might be regarded as wise under the circumstances.

That would have left Voigt and Holmer as heads, respectively, of their own agencies, where they could be expected to render most effective service.

THE POLITICS * SOPHISTICATED

There is a familiar sermon among conservationists about the hazards of politics in conservation administration. Yet the swift demonstration of their power by the four conservation commissioners on the Natural Resources Board, and their determination to use it, was one of the most convincing exhibitions of political sophistication the old Wisconsin statehouse has seen lately.

The plan became evident with the election of Russell Lynch of Wauwatosa as board chairman over John Potter, who had been chairman of one of the constituent boards. Potter clearly was designated as the governor's preference when he asked him to preside as acting chairman at the first session a fortnight ago. Lynch provided proof of his own foreknowledge, if any was needed, when he brought out an acceptance speech prepared in advance. When he almost immediately announced that he wanted Voigt as department secretary, there was no point to further resistance and the vote was unanimous.

Lester Voigt is an able, experienced and responsible man. His rise as a career civil servant has been steady and impressive.

Yet there is an irony in the circumstance that the officials of the agency who fought most desperately against the idea of an integrated natural resources program and claimed it could not work, nevertheless moved with such determination to take over its control.

Strictly Personal

Our Divorce Laws Badly Need Change

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the letters I received in response to a recent piece on changing our divorce laws came from a woman who objected to my statement that "there are no innocent bystanders in a bad marriage."

She went on for five pages about the bad marriage her son had made — and, from her version, he had been treated shabbily and was the "innocent party" as far as the subsequent divorce was concerned.

Harris

But I did not mean that the overt actions of the mates in a marriage are equally culpable; rather, that we seek out and marry the kind of person we unconsciously crave for.

The woman who marries a bully has a neurotic need to be bullied; the man who marries a shrew is expressing a desire to be dominated. Those who marry compulsive gamblers or alcoholics or promiscuous persons are asking to be hurt, whether or not they know it.

In this deeper sense, nobody is so pure and naive that he or she is not a party to some "game," as Eric Berne would put it, in which illicit needs are being served on both sides. We are not "fooled" by people in love affairs; we willingly fool ourselves, unaware that a high price will have to be paid for this self-deception.

The mother who wrote to me — and she was only one of many who pleaded the case for an "innocent bystander" — could see only the surface manifestations of the bad marriage. She never asked herself, if her son's wife was as dreadful as she claimed, why the son was attracted to her in the first place.

It takes two to tango, maritally as well as on the dance floor. The sort of person we choose as a love-object reveals much about our own conscious and unconscious needs; and if we are deluded by glitter, then there is something in us that prefers glitter to substance. And not even the most intelligent and worldly person is exempt from such delusional behavior in matters of the heart.

And this is precisely why the present "adversary system" of divorce is so senseless, so unjust, and so harmful to all parties involved. There is enough social and moral and psychological and often religious guilt involved in a divorce — without adding the insupportable burden of legal guilt as well, which mostly harms the children.

Moreover, if anyone who is divorced believes the fiction that he or she was an "innocent bystander" in the marriage, then a subsequent marriage is likely to be just as disastrous, for nothing will have been learned to enable oneself to come to realistic terms with the darker, deeper, and more devious aspects of our nature.

Child's Hair Ribbon Can be Lethal Weapon

AUCKLAND (AP) — A child's hair ribbon fell into a pool at Napier, New Zealand — and killed a dolphin.

The dolphin, Jenco, a favorite with spectators at Napier's Marineland, swallowed the ribbon. But it stuck in her lung and caused a hemorrhage from which she died.

An autopsy showed that Jenco was an adventurous eater. Besides the ribbon she had swallowed two plastic bags, a handkerchief and two elastic garters.

Ambassadorial Posts Show LBJ Weakness

Can't Find Type He Wants; Jobs Go To Foreign Service Men by Default

BY ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A seemingly routine announcement by the White House of two ambassadorial appointments, totally obscured by the crisis over urban rioting, marked the failure of President Johnson to meet one of his most cherished goals.

Novak Evans

From the moment he entered the White House, Mr. Johnson was determined to outdo John F. Kennedy in luring glib-tongued businessmen, academicians and writers into key posts of the federal bureaucracy — and particularly the Foreign Service, the most powerful single element within the bureaucracy — has captured control of the appointive process.

This was evident in the July 25 nominations of Martin Hillenbrand as ambassador to Hungary and Edward M. Korry as ambassador to Ethiopia.

no quibbling about the ability of either man: both rate well above the average American diplomat. Rather, there is reason to believe that both are in the wrong jobs — thanks to pressures from the Foreign Service lobby.

Lobby's Candidate

Hillenbrand is a career Foreign Service officer of outstanding ability who, as No. 2 man in the Bonn embassy the past several years, has bolstered a generally weak American mission there. When the U. S. and Hungary agreed last November to raise the level of their respective missions in Budapest and Washington from legations to embassies, Hillenbrand immediately became the Foreign Service lobby's candidate for ambassador.

White House staffers disagreed with Hungary's Kadar regime showing signs of liberalization, they wanted a more venturesome type — perhaps a dynamic young business executive — who would take risks a career diplomat would never dare to take.

Besides looking for an imaginative young businessman, serious consideration was also given to Korry, a former Look magazine reporter who knows Eastern Europe well and handled his job as ambassador to Ethiopia with skill. But Mr. Johnson could not find exactly the man he wanted, and the Foreign Service lobby kept plugging for Hillenbrand. The outcome finally sent Hillenbrand to a post he might not be best suited for and Korry, who has little or no Latin American experience, to a time of dangerous political crisis in Chile.

Not Isolated Cases

The inappropriateness of these appointments is by no means an isolated case. In fact, even administration officials admitted President Johnson's appointive procedures have collapsed.

Both in the Foreign Service and in domestic posts. The basic reasons are twofold: First, the deep-seated suspicion so much of a Lyndon Johnson's political nature for promotion through the ranks of the bureaucracy, as opposed to recruiting from outside.

No Help From Rusk

Furthermore, Under Secretary of State Nicholas de B. Katzenbach has run into stubborn opposition from the Foreign Service lobby. He has had precious little aid from Secretary of State Dean Rusk in his assigned mission to recruit ambassadors from outside the government.

All this leads to chronic delays in high level appointments, both foreign and domestic. There is seldom a time when Mr. Johnson is not confronting a half dozen or more unfulfilled posts. For instance, Mr. Johnson's transfer from Ethiopia

This was the start of a career which, by 1941, had made the young musician a popularity poll winner in his native England. Shearing dominated the British jazz polls for the next seven years. He made his first trip to the United States late in 1946. A year later, Shearing and his family made a more extended stay in America but the only work he could find was as an

'White Trash' College Born, Has Great Sound

BY CHUCK POSNIAK

The White Trash is their name born in a spirit of jest while the six musicians were students at the University of Wisconsin in Madison

When they pooled their musical resources about 18 months ago to form a band, the musicians discussed many names. They decided it was a better idea to kid themselves than someone else, so came up with 'White Trash' as an idea. Thus they got their name.

I've been hearing good comments on the group for the last few months, but never had the chance to see and hear the boys in action. This week they finally made an appearance in the Fox Cities area, at the Quarry, a local beer bar.

Makes Good Guess

Since the band was composed of college students and having seen a picture of the group, I made a guess as to the type of music they would play.

My guess was 100 per cent correct. The White Trash specializes in Chicago blues, soul music, rhythm and blues — or as stated by the group's bass guitarist Tom Flinn, "psychedelic space funk." Your guess is as good as mine as to what that is.

Great Sound

Compared to the four- and five-piece groups most common in this area, The White Trash is a big group. Each member has a specialty in his own right. The group often has three lead instruments — harmonica organ, and guitar — playing lead solos at one time. With the drums bass guitar, and vocals, added the sound that comes out is great.

Leading the group in vocals is John Davis on lead guitar is Roger Brotherhood. The other members of the band are Ed Koller on harmonica, Tom Flinn, bass guitar, Kirk Elliott, on drums and Gary Karp, organ.

In my opinion, one of the band's biggest assets is the harmonica player. Good guitarists, drummers and organists are a common commodity, but harmonica players are rare.

Good harmonica players almost seem to be extinct.

Recording Contract

The White Trash recently has signed a contract with Dunwich Records and their first album on this label should be released in October on the national market.

Until record sales zoom upward — if and when — the group plans to continue playing around the state on week stands and one-nighters with national stars.

In the past they have backed such stars as The Animals, Major Lance and The Mods. They also have had a jam session with the lead guitarist of their favorite group, The Paul Butterfield Blues Band.

Having a sound much like that of the Butterfield band, I bet that many good sounds came out of that jam session. I know that many good sounds will continue to come out of The White Trash.

Drama, Music Highlight TV For Tonight

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-6-9 — Time Tunnel may have solved the mystery of the death of Adolf Hitler. Michael Ansara, the only believable part of this program is a scientist living 6,000 years hence. His perfect historical data-gathering process is quite simple. First he kidnaps people from all eras, and civilizations bringing them to his own time, as he does with Tony Doug and Ann. Then he drains their total knowledge, transferring all their experience into computers (C-R).

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7-12 — Transylvania comes to The Wild, Wild West complete with a caped figure and his pet were wolf. West and Gordon are supposed to protect an East European heir but it seems they could use some protection themselves. Especially when a huge slaver wolf pounces on West and absorbs his bullets with no ill effects (C-R).

7:30-8 Channels 11-6-9 — President Robie Porter presides while Dean Rick Nelson of Malibu U introduces his 'Drop-In' faculty including Lou Rawls ('When Love Goes Wrong'), Marvin Gaye ('Ain't That Peculiar') and The Turtles ('Happy Together'). The prexy makes his vocal contribution with 'Rainbow Tree' and Dean Nelson does 'Suzanne on a Sunday Morning' (C).

7:30-8:30 Channels 4-5 — 'The Come With Me to the Casbah Affair' is an exotic, playful and often interesting episode for The Man From U.N.C.L.E. Abbe Lane wiggles easily as a dancer, and there is something to do over a missing THRUSH code (C-R).

8-10 Channels 2-7-12 — 'My Geisha' on The Friday Night Movies has some beautiful scenery of Japan, where it was filmed, spoiled only by the plot, which keeps getting in the way. Yves Montand plays a film producer who leaves his actress wife (Shirley MacLaine) home while he goes to Japan to shoot a picture. She follows (C-R).

9-10 Channels 4-5 — If you fancy nursery rhymes and have the patience to figure them out as clues to something 'big', then you may enjoy Laredo's Hey Diddle Diddle. In this sprawling episode, Carl Ballantine bites the dust just as he is about to recover a set of counterfeit money plates. His dying words are poetic ones, an insight to a fortune (C-R).

After Facing Only a 10 Per Cent chance of survival at birth, the year-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hector, Springfield, N. J., are now a robust 17 pounds each on their first birthdays. Caren and Cathy each weighed less than three pounds at birth, two months prematurely. They spent two months in incubators. Below, Ingrid Bergman was photographed in Los Angeles, where she will appear in "More Stately Mansions". Almost 50, the Swedish Actress will make her first American stage appearance in 21 years. At right, two young women who faced personal tragedies have become friends. They are Roberta Scott, Tulsa, Okla., and Donna Schueler, Madison. Both have lost legs, one to cancer and the other in an accident.

Tell Troth of Margo Dreyer

Mr. and Mrs. William N. Dreyer, 2010 Palisades Drive, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Margo Mowat, to Dennis L. Anderson. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Anderson, Smithtown, New York.

The bride-elect was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, Madison with a B. S. degree in art. Her fiancé is a student at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Daughter's Engagement Announced

Durable Press Garments Allow Little Altering

Don't buy durably pressed garments thinking you can let them out to fit better. This special treatment makes altering a one-way process only.

Durably pressed ready-made garments can be shortened or taken in, but not lengthened, according to Lenore Landry, clothing and textiles specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Durably pressed garments have been "baked" at a high temperature so the creases and pleats will hold after laundering. If these clothes are let out, the original line will show. Be sure to buy everything big enough and long enough. You can shorten hems and sleeves the usual way, but the new edge won't be sharp.

Pleated skirts can't be shortened from the hemline because the pleat crease is "set" and when you turn it up it will be reversed. Shorten pleated skirts from the waistline.

Most durable press slacks are sold with the cuffs already in them. To shorten trousers, remove the cuff, shorten to the desired length, then remount the cuff.

Off the Wire

Events at Large Occupy Women Today

Young Patrick Lyndon Nugent is the apple of his grandparents' eyes this week as President and Mrs. Lyndon Johnson care for their first grandchild. The young Nugents, who will celebrate their first wedding anniversary Sunday, are having a second honeymoon in the Bahamas.

In Milwaukee this week, things are settling down to normal after a week of tense unrest. The National Guard is moving out of quarters at State Fair Park just in time for the 4-H contingent to move in. The fair opens today. County fair queens from throughout the state assembled in Milwaukee Wednesday to meet with judges who'll pick from among 14 young women "Miss Fairest of the Fair". Among contestants is Miss Barbara Pridoux, Weyauwega.

To Be Wed

Marriage plans were announced this week by Michael Prescott Goldwater, 26, and Constance Jean Stockert. The son of one-time presidential candidate Barry Goldwater lives in Mill Valley, Calif. Miss Stockert, of Sausalito, Calif., is a stewardess for Trans-World Airlines. The couple will be married in December.

A Miss Indian America was chosen this week. To carry the title for the following year is 19-year-old Sarah Ann Johnson of Window Rock, Ariz. First runner-up was Miss Rosa Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Hill, Oneida. There were 36 contestants from Indian tribes all over the country.

In Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Roger L. Wilkinson received the biggest birthday card of the week. For her 22nd birthday anniversary her husband, stationed with the Army in Vietnam, sent best wishes via billboard. Said she: "He's got to be the greatest."

Became Friends

In Tulsa, Okla., this week, two beauties who faced similar tragedies met for the first time. Roberta Scott, the former Miss Tulsa and a coed at Oklahoma State University, lost a leg to cancer. Donna Schueler, Madison, a University of Wisconsin campus queen, lost her left leg in a traffic accident. The two corresponded after Miss Schueler's accident and the friendship has grown. Miss Schueler will return to the university in the fall.

Ingrid Bergman is back in the U.S., ready for a return to the American stage. She'll appear in "More Stately Mansions", at Los Angeles Music Center. The Swedish actress has not lived in the U.S. since her romance with Roberto Rossellini happened 18 years ago.

Vincent Edwards, 37, was married Saturday in Beverly Hills, Calif., to Linda Foster, 23. The couple said their vows at the home of entertainer Dean Martin. They'll leave for Europe around the middle of August, where the actor will work in a film called "Hammerhead."

Actor Vince Edwards and His Bride, the former Miss Linda Foster, pose for photographers after their Sunday wedding in Beverly Hills, Calif. It was the first marriage for the bride, 23, and the second for the actor, who is 37. At left, in a scene reminiscent of World War II days, a woman works in a munitions plant. She is Dolores Onusko, checking 150 mm shells in a Pittsburgh plant. Many women have returned to work on the defense program for Vietnam. (AP Wirephoto)

Women Bank Employees Invade Nuptial Rite Realms of Higher Management Performed

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1919 when Virginia Furman became New York's first woman bank officer—an assistant secretary in charge of the women's department—her bank, Columbia Trust Company, took a quarter-page newspaper ad to celebrate the occasion.

Just the other day—nearly a half-century later—New York got its first woman vice president of a major commercial bank. Did the company, Bank of America, buy space to bandy Elizabeth Brady's name about the business community?

No. Her elevation received the standard treatment—a one-page release on the appointment was sent to newspapers. And a bunch of the girls took her to dinner.

That's how matter-of-fact the financial world is becoming about the heady rise of women in its midst.

Little Reaction

No great stir, either, greeted the announcement, hot on the heels of Miss Brady's appointment, that Chase Manhattan Bank had its first woman branch manager.

But no sooner had Madeline Burgess settled herself at the manager's desk in the branch office on New York's chic East Side than the Federal Reserve Bank of New York got into the act. This largest and most influential of the 12 districts in the Federal Reserve System promoted Madeline H. McWhinney to become its first woman assistant vice president.

Each has worked long, hard and faithfully for her company to get where she is.

Lifts Morale

"The thing that thrills me most about my appointment," says Miss Brady, whose fellow workers and preferred customers call her Liz, "is how it has lifted the morale of the women in the bank. They realize that if I can do it, they can do it. Even the little misperceptions kids who don't seem serious about anything are absolutely delighted."

Miss Brady—she was married 10 years ago to Philip C. Horter, a consulting engineer but she uses her maiden name professionally—is a well-groomed, comfortable woman who has never forgotten that she started with the company as a stenographer during the depression.

Steady Progress

In the subsequent 33 years her progress, to secretary, to platform assistant, to assistant treasurer, to assistant vice president and, on June 20, vice president, has been steady—but slow enough to make friends instead of jealous enemies along the way. It also helps explain why the young stenographer has a "real doll" behind her back.

She believes "women have as much a mind for money as men" and proudly points out that women now hold jobs in every phase of banking. "Why, in our international banking department some girls are being trained for greater responsibility, including travel abroad. The idea of a woman traveling as representative of a big bank was unheard of 15 years ago," she says.

Daily Commuter

Miss Brady commutes daily to Manhattan from West Orange, N.J., where she was born and has lived all her life.

As vice president she is both an account officer, handling law firms, charitable foundations and a couple of museums, and a full loaning officer, which the bank considers something of a breakthrough for a woman.

This upsurge of women in the higher realms of banki g has happened in the last 20 years. In 1945 the number of women bank

Rate of Growth Affects Child's Eating Habits

Rapidly growing children need more food than their slower growing friends, says Joan Kramer, nutrition specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

But Mrs. Kramer cautions that forcing children who are already eating well to eat more won't change their growth rate—it will only make them obese. There is no control over growth rates of children, we can only help by providing good food and proper medical care.

Patterns Vary

Youngsters vary greatly in their growth patterns and parents shouldn't worry if their child isn't quite like the average. He may be growing at a rate normal for him and still be smaller or larger than friends his own age.

What's important is that your child grows at a rate normal for him. Your family physician can tell by examination and tests whether your child is growing at a rate which is normal for him. The specialist says that many factors, such as changes in activity and exercise, diet, nervous tension, and presence of infectious diseases, can influence growth rates of children.

Each child may go through growth "spurts." Then he must eat more because he needs it, but will eat less when the rate of growth slows down.

A healthy child has firm, well-developed muscles and good posture. He should also have enough energy to be active, curious, and adventuresome.

State Practical Nurse Group Plans Parley

The 18th annual state convention of the Wisconsin Licensed Practical Nurse Association will be held Oct. 26 and 27 at the Green Bay Elks Club.

Theme of the two-day convention will be "Knowledge Through Growth and Progress". Keynote speaker will be Miss A. C. G. Stahl, director of the Wisconsin Department of Nurses.

All licensed practical nurses have been invited to attend.

Selling Point

Banks, in trying to attract women to the profession, use as a selling point that highly specialized backgrounds or educations are not needed.

Remember Miss Brady, the steno of 1934. Then there's Mona Cunningham, president of the 5,400-member National Organization of Bank-Women Inc., who started 32 years ago as a secretary to a vice president of the Union National Bank in Wichita, Kan. Now she's a vice president herself.

Answered Ad

Madeline Burgess recalls that she was just out of Brooklyn College in 1942 with a B.A. and absolutely no secretarial or other skills that most jobs for women seemed to require. Then she read a classified ad that said "No skills required." It led her to the door of the Chase National Bank, where she started as a credit trainee. Today she's a branch manager.

An exception, perhaps, is Miss McWhinney. Denver-born and a Smith College graduate, she started as a junior statistician in 1943 and earned her M.B.A. from New York University in 1947. Married to a businessman, John D. Dale, and mother of a son, Miss McWhinney has always been involved in statistics for the bank.

Women Employees

Statistics of another kind—the 36-24-36 variety—fascinate at least one other bank these days. The National Bank of North America, which has 90 branches in New York City and Long Island, employs about 500 women tellers.

All of them attend special seminars and treatment days at "Rumplestiltskin" and "The which they receive personal beauty and grooming advice and treatments. This will make them more telling tellers, the bank thinks.

More to the point, the grooming course featured in recruitment ads has resulted in a 50 per cent increase in applicants. Looking beautiful in a cage while handling money seems to appeal to a lot of women.

Defend Very Artfully: You'll Win

MY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You can fool some of the people some of the time, and that's usually enough to give you a winning score at the bridge table. This is especially true when declarer misplays the hand that you are defending so artfully.

South won the jack of spades and led out four rounds of trumps, discarding a club from dummy. East could safely discard the rest of his spades.

When South next led a spade to the ace East threw the deuce of diamonds. Declarer returned to his hand with the ace of clubs to cash another high spade, and East threw the four of diamonds.

South then led his last trump, and East threw the eight of diamonds without a blink or a tremor. On paper, East had been squeezed since he could not keep enough clubs and diamonds to defeat the grand slam.

Unfortunately for South, however, the hand was not played on paper. South didn't know that East had blanked the king of diamonds. When the clubs failed to break South tried the diamond finesse and went down two. East took the king of diamonds and the 10 of clubs.

No Roses

Give East credit for sang froid and a spot of savoir faire, but don't throw any roses in South's direction. He let himself in for a guess, and he deserved what he got.

South should take the first trick with the ace of spades and draw just two rounds of trumps. Then he cashes his high spades to discard a club from dummy. With only two clubs left in the dummy South can pretty safely cash two high clubs and then ruff his low club with dummy's king of hearts. It is then easy to cash the ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond and draw the last trump.

Daily Question

As dealer, you hold: S-K Q J, H-A Q J 10 9, D-10, C-A K Q 4. What do you say?

Answer: Bid two hearts, forcing to game. You have at least 9 playing tricks, with better than 4½ Quick Tricks. You are willing to get to game even if partner has a hand without a single high card.

Honeymoon Over Just in Time For Second One to Get Started

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — "Dear Pavement Plato:

"I am a young man of 24. Three weeks ago I married a beautiful girl I met at a fish fry in the Catskill Mountains. Since then our life has been one perfect song.

"Each morning my darling wraps in a love letter the chicken sandwich I carry to the office for lunch. She gets up early to write the letter before leaving for her own job.

"I am so happy that it makes the fellows I work with envious. They keep saying, 'You don't know what marriage is really like until the honeymoon is over.' Will you please tell me how I'll know when the honeymoon really is over? "Anxious Benedict"

Dear Benedict:

friends. They should let you enjoy your happiness while it lasts.

For, alas, there is some truth to their remarks: All honeymoons do come to an end eventually, as man was not born to swoon in eternal bliss on earth.

How can you tell when this happens in your case Well, it happens to most couples in the same way. There are many signs. You can figure your honeymoon is over when—

Sure Sign

She'd rather go into the living room and watch television than stay in the kitchen and watch you do the dishes.

You start a war with her relatives or she starts a war with yours.

With a chill sense of foreboding you make the disheartening discovery that, wonderful as she is in other ways, she can't concoct a rotatable martini.

You notice for the first time that her knees are a bit bony, or that she does get pretty heavy when she curls up in your lap after dinner.

She thinks it would be nice to get a cat, but you think it would be nicer to get a dog for a pet.

Open Eyes

No longer does she close her eyes when you kiss her goodbye in the morning. Instead she grumbles, "You're musing my lipstick."

You tell her you can't eat lamb more than once a month, and she goes right on serving it twice a week.

She decides it is hurting your manly pride for her to work, so she quits her job and tells you that you'll simply have to ask your boss for a raise.

Your lunch sandwich is wrapped in a newspaper—not a love letter—and it's made of baloney, not chicken.

You courteously ask her to please quit hanging up her stockings on the bathroom shower rod, and that starts a battle that lasts until 2 a.m.

You wonder if that pallid creature in hair curlers sitting across from you at the breakfast table is the girl of your dreams or just a leftover nightmare.

Out They Go

She begins finding fault with your disreputable bachelor pals, and one by one they disappear from your social life.

There's more billing in the house than cooing.

At a cocktail party, after only two drinks, she defiantly insists that your solution of the problem in Vietnam is no better than her solution.

She tells you tha, your snoring is keeping her awake, and gets mad when you tell her that she snores, too.

Your bad habits she found so endearing when you were courting her, she now finds undesirable.

Lets It Go

She no longer wonders if she should call the police and report you missing if you're more than 12 minutes late coming home from work.

Tearfully she threatens to go home to mother, but calls the trip off because there's so little money in the bank she'd have to hitchhike if she went.

Yep, these are signs the honeymoon is over, son. And that's a good time to start promising your bride what a grand time she'll have on her second one—if she can just hold out till your golden wedding anniversary.

Your Problems

Reader's Questionnaire Sets Constructive Goals for Teens

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few weeks ago you printed a questionnaire which was sent to you by a Memphis teen-ager. I felt it was a waste of newspaper space and I was deeply disappointed that Ann Landers, who has consistently shown such good judgment, saw fit to publish such trash.

I hope you will print my questionnaire which is infinitely more meaningful and constructive. Just sign me "A Parent Who Dearly Loves You."

Here is the guide for scoring:

If you can answer "yes" to five of the questions you are a good teen-ager. If you can answer "yes" to seven or more is to burn it. Thank you for these questions you have helping to educate the ignoramuses. — Hip Hattie

Dear Hat: Did you include yourself among the "ignoramuses?" If you didn't, you should have.

The flag burning incident you refer to was a flagrant act of desecration. It was a vicious demonstration of hatred for America. When "the book" says burn the flag it means burn it in private, Stupid.

Landers

If you have trouble getting along with your parents... if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Rugged by Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Post-Crescent enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1967)

The Ailing House Takes Time To Strip Old Paint

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: I tried liquid paint remover on an old settee which has had many coats of paint. While some came off, a lot remained. Is the remover defective or did I leave out some steps?

A: Neither. You just can't expect one application of paint remover to strip four, five or six coats of paint. Just keep on. When the top layers come off, put on some more remover. Eventually you'll work to the bottom.

Q: We recently moved into a brand new house which I examined carefully. Nowhere could I find a crack in the basement. Yet the walls and floors are constantly very damp. Is this due to a long, damp spring or is there another reason?

A: While the damp weather contributed, it's only by slowing up the normal evaporation of all the water in the new concrete. This usually takes a few months. In other words, don't worry.

Q: Apparently our arched fireplace is too high for its width and depth. I tried raising the iron basket grate several inches, but this did not improve the wood-burning properties one bit. Any other ideas?

A: Raising the grate has no effect on the draft. This is controlled by dimensions of the fireplace opening. Experiment with holding a large piece of heavy cardboard over the top section. When you find where the draft is best, have a permanent metal hood installed at this height.

Q: First thing in the morning, our water is rusty. But after a while it clears up until the next morning. The flow is excellent. I am sure it is rust somewhere but what can we do, other than put in new plumbing pipes?

A: All you can do is have a competent plumber try to find the rust source. Then that pipe or fitting could be replaced. While there's no great rush, it will probably have to be done sometime.

Anthropologist Comments

Men, Women Both Profit From Each Other's Best Traits

MONTREAL (AP) — American anthropologist Ashley Montagu says the feminine trend in men and the masculine trend in women are good things—both need it.

"Man has been in need of more of the traits we call feminine and women have been in need of some masculine traits," the 62-year-old Montagu said in an interview Thursday.

Montagu cited tenderness and the ability to love as desirable feminine traits and a spirit of adventure as a desirable masculine trait.

Since these traits are taught, he said, "we can all learn to change in the desired direction."

New American

A native of Britain and resident of Princeton, N.J., Montagu became a naturalized U.S. citizen in 1940. He has a son and two daughters.

Aside from their desirable learned traits, women are the more important part of the specimen biologically, he said.

"The only trait in which men are superior—if you can call it superiority—is if they are more muscularly powerful."

Women, he continued, by using their intelligence to outwit male force, have become more intelligent. They are also constitutionally stronger.

Compensate

Men are unconsciously afraid of this constitutional and intellectual strength and that is why "women have been terribly badly treated by men through the ages," said Montagu.

He said the most important trait men and women must develop is the ability to love, and this is cultivated principally by women.

"Women are more basically humane by reason of the fact that they have been selected to minister to the needs of the increasingly long infancy of the human being," he said.

Most marriages are not a success, they are "difficult compromises," Montagu added.
